Area Police Probe Danbury Bombings

KINGSTON will determine whether local in-vestigation will be intensified toward a possible connection between the two cases. Agents of the FBI, state police, and New York City Bomb Squad have been searching for clues to link persons to the 150 pound cache of dynamite found in an abandoned house in Woodstock. Police still feel that the seizure of this explosive has averted some trouble. The Woodstock dynamite was of a type known as gellax. Connecticut and New York state police are cooperating in the search for the Danbury bombers, as that city is in Fairfield County, which borders New York's Dutchess County. About 25 persons were injured in the Danbury bombings, including more than 20 in the police station when a powerful blast occurred near the front entrance of the building. It smashed out all front windows, blew a hole in the wall, ruptured water pipes, and sent rubble spewing onto Main Street. A short time later, two armed men invaded the Union Savings Bank and robbed it of about $75,000. Witnesses described the men as armed with a machine gun and a sawed-off shotgun. One of the robbers had long hair, and the other was hefty and wearing a mustache. A third blast demolished a car in the parking lot at the Danbury mall, damaged half a dozen other parked cars, and broke the front window of a store. FBI agents today said they were "aware" of the similarity to a bank holdup in Union, Mo., last Nov. 13 in which bandits escaped after setting off three explosive devices. Danbury police reported bomb threats were made at two elementary schools Friday, forcing students to evacuate the buildings. Police were operating out of an emergency command post at a civic center, since their headquarters was in ruins.

Chicago 7 Trial Goes To the Jury

CHICAGO (AP) — The jury which has sat through five months of testimony, arguments, insults and obscenities in the trial of seven men charged with riot conspiracy is being charged today to find a verdict.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman of U.S. District Court said at the close of Friday's session, after both sides completed final arguments, that he would instruct the jury of 10 women and 2 men today.

The judge said he expected his instructions to take two hours. After that the jury's task will be to determine the guilt or innocence of the seven men charged with conspiracy to cross state lines with the intent to incite rioting at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The court proceedings have been interrupted frequently by sharp exchanges between the judge and the defense since the trial began Sept. 21.

In the final arguments Friday, both defense lawyer William M. Kunstler and prosecutor Thomas A. Foran, the U.S. district attorney, spoke of troubled times.

Kunstler urged each juror to stand firm in his beliefs and not to be swayed by the thoughts of other jury members. He was reprimanded by the judge.

Kunstler added, "This is a moment in history where the courtroom becomes the proving ground to see whether men die free or live free."

Saugerties Starts the Initial Step

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SAUGERTIES Saugerties Town Board this week took initial steps toward the abolishment of the town police justice post, but the proposal must pass both houses of the State Legislature and requires the governor's signature before it becomes a fact.

If it receives the green signal all the way, it would become effective at the end of 1971 when the current term of Ernest E. Schirmer expires. However, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller vetoed this idea about five years ago. Saugerties is reportedly one of the few townships in the state that still has a town police justice office.

Schirmer has held the post for 35 years. It was created by the State Legislature in 1861.

The Town Board Thursday night adopted a resolution to petition the State Legislature through the local representatives, Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, who would have to file the bill for legislative consideration.

In another decision, the Town Board moved closer to zoning with the signing of a $6,600 contract with Emanuel S. Emanuel Associates of Nyack to serve as planning consultants for the town. The pact is for one year.

The planning firm served on a interim basis during November and December to press for adoption of a building code ordinance and subdivision regulations.

Planners of the firm have already conducted two executive workshop meetings with the town Planning Board on the subdivision proposal and other town legislation.

BONNIE MARIE BARRINGER, 18-year-old daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. George B. Barringer, 166 Henry Street, Kingston, has won The Freeman's third annual Valentine contest. Out of a total 7,605 votes cast by our readers, Miss Barringer received 3,343, making her the undeniable choice of the voters. "I'm so happy," the young Valentine queen told The Freeman when she learned about her victory over five other beautiful finalists. GE Troubles Might Not Be Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even as the slumbering production wheels of the General Electric Co. began to grind ahead, GE officials and union leaders in two New York State cities met Friday in an effort to settle one strike and avert another. In Schenectady top management of the Steam Turbine Division and officials of Local 301, International Union of Electrical Workers met amid threats that 4,000 union workers might walk out.

The strike threat is over three complaints that date back to March and April 1969. The complaints were not made public, but local president Angelo Durante said individual cases of alleged continued harassment were at issue.

Talks are scheduled to resume Monday. More than 13,000 IUE members in Schenectady returned to work this week after a 101-day nationwide walkout.

In Utica, company officials held a final bargaining session with representatives of one local of the International Association of Machinists which represents about one half of the company's 8,000-man work force there.

Lodge 1669, with about 1,500 members rejected the nationwide settlement last Sunday.

688-250. Another vote is slated for today.

Meanwhile, pattern makers meeting with company officials in New York City reached a tentative agreement on a new national contract. The contract is thought to be similar to the settlement between the larger unions and the company.

The AFL-CIO Pattern Makers League of North America represents about 150 men in cities across the country.

Members of the so-called Armed Commandos for Liberation released a letter in San Juan, Puerto Rico in which they claimed responsibility for bombings at GE plants in New York City Feb. 8 and in Rio Piedras Feb. 11.

The acts were a demonstration of solidarity with striking workers, they said.

A GE spokesman said the giant electrical manufacturer with its 310,000 employees in 135 U.S. cities was moving back toward normal production.

Two Navy Sweepers Ambushed

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops ambushed two U.S. Navy minesweepers, killing one American and wounding six, the U.S. Command reported today. The ambush took place on the Rach Giang Thanh River a mile east of the Cambodian border and 145 miles west of Saigon. The Navy said damage to the minesweepers was "minor."

Battlefield communiques for the past 24 hours indicated that South Vietnamese forces bore the brunt of the fighting, mostly in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that government forces killed 77 enemy soldiers in four clashes from 13 miles southwest of Saigon to the western Mekong Delta's border with Cambodia. Field reports said South Vietnamese losses were one man killed and 41 wounded.

Government headquarters also reported that 260 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from the 88th Regiment were killed in a week-long operation in the Plain of Reeds along the Cambodian border west of Saigon. Sources said more than 20 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and more than 40 wounded.

The U.S. Command said there were 18 enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. It said six caused casualties or damage and two Americans were wounded.

A government spokesman said enemy troops fired rocket grenades and machine guns into a populated area in the western Delta, killing four civilians and wounding three others.

The U.S. Command announced today that four Army units had been deactivated and three Coast Guard patrol boats transferred to the Vietnamese navy as part of the Vietnamization program.

The Army units deactivated were Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 125th Transportation Terminal Command, Saigon; the 463rd Medical Detachment, an X-ray unit based at An Khe in the Central Highlands; the 569th Engineer Company at Nha Trang; and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 11th Transportation Battalion, based at Cat Lai eight miles north of Saigon.

Headquarters said members of the four units who have completed their 12-month tours in Vietnam will return to the United States. Others are being reassigned in Vietnam.

A spokesman said the deactivation resulted in a reduction of roughly 30 Army spaces from the current authorized U.S. manpower ceiling, of 484,000 in Vietnam. The disbanding of the four units is part of withdrawals which will reduce authorized strength to 434,000 by April 15.

Lenten Sacrifice Can Be Meaningful

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Lent, which began Wednesday and will continue until Easter Sunday (March 29), may be observed and understood in several different ways.

On one level, it can be regarded as an archaic survival of the medieval custom of "mortifying the flesh" to keep the body in subjection to the spirit.

When Lent is so regarded, it is not very congenial to the temperament of our time. It strikes a wrong note, not merely because we are addicted to our creature comforts, but more importantly because it is a very self-centered approach to religion.

There are plenty of people around today. Both young and old, who are ready to sacrifice ease and pleasure for the sake of others or in the service of a cause.

Such people, whether they realize it or not, are religious in the sense to which Jesus Christ attached the greatest significance.

Former City Pastor to Lead Lenten Series

WALLKILL—Seven churches of the Wallkill Valley will again unite for a series of Lenten services Sunday 7:30 p.m. The first service will be held Feb. 15 at the New Prospect Reformed Church, Pine Bush.

The guest preacher this year will be the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, minister of the First Reformed Church, Schenectady. Before going to Schenectady in 1960 Dr. Dykstra was for many years the minister of the Fair Street Reformed Church in Kingston.

Dr. Dykstra is a graduate of Hope College and New Brunswick Theological Seminary. Hope College awarded him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1962.

The theme for his sermons is "Perspectives on Commitment." His message Sunday evening will be The Miracle Worker. Succeeding Sunday evening services will be in the following churches, and in this order: Wallkill Reformed Church, New Hurley Reformed Church, Walden Reformed Church and Meadow Hill Reformed Church, Newburgh. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Young People On Retreat to Plan Service

KINGSTON—Approximately 30 young people of Immanuel Lutheran Church are spending this weekend at Camp Kolonia, near Port Jervis. In addition to tobogganing, sledding, ice-skating, and other winter sport facilities, the teenagers will be writing the words and composing or selecting the musical settings for the coming Immanuel Youth Service scheduled during April.

According to the pastor, the Rev. Gary Mehl, "this weekend will provide an opportunity to discover some community aspects of the Christian Gospel which cannot be communicated under normal circumstances." Accompanying the youth will be the Rev. and Mrs. Mehl, and three teachers from Immanuel Parochial School.

Bell Ringers Assist School

KINGSTON—The 10 members of the Old Dutch Church Handbell Ringers have voted to send a gift of $50 toward the purchase of handbells for the Kinjo Gaiun Christian Junior High School in Nagoya, Japan.

The donation was earned by the group through donations for their various engagements in the area. During the past year the Handbell Ringers have presented programs at the Saugerties and St. James United Methodist Churches, Smithfield Presbyterian Church and Kingston Savings Bank. They are scheduled to perform April 21 at the Hurley Reformed Church.

The Old Dutch Church Handbell Ringers under the direction of Miss Cindy Jones include Bryan and Jackie Hill, Jolie and Michael Dunham, Michael Chavis.

Court Orders

Curfew for

Greene Youths

COXSACKIE

Two teenage youths are under court curfew orders regulating their hours of staying home — unless accompanied by a parent — as the result of their pleas of guilty to possessing stolen property.

The youths were identified by Leeds State Police as 18-year-old Dennis Parslow of Apple Blossom Lane and Samuel Mansico, 17, of Mansion Street, both of this Greene County village.

Parslow was accused of reporting to his mother that someone had stolen a stereo from her car, and she in turn notified the insurance company. Investigation by Troop N. J. Pazin disclosed that the youth allegedly took the stereo. Parslow was also charged with falsely reporting a crime to police.

Both youths were accused of having in their possession a stereo that had been reported stolen.

Arraigned Thursday before Village Justice Jerome Mirasura, the youths pleaded guilty.

Parslow was ordered to be home daily before 9:30 p. m. The youth has employment after school hours and works until 9 p. m. This order will be in effect for six months. Mansico was ordered to be at home before 6 p. m. daily and to stay there unless accompanied by his mother if he goes out after that hour. That order will be effective for 60 days.

The Flu Strikes in 45 States; Predict Leveling Off Trend

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Outbreaks of influenza and flu-like illnesses have been reported in 45 states but health officials say the number of cases is small compared to those reported last winter.

A survey by the National Communicable Disease Center here shows what officials say is considerably more influenza activity than was expected. However, the report says that a leveling off trend is evident throughout the country.

The center says that in comparison with last year, the current influenza seems more localized, with large urban centers such as New York City, Detroit and Los Angeles spared, in contrast to the city outbreaks of last winter.

During the week ending Feb. 7, a total of 780 deaths attributed to influenza and pneumonia were reported in 122 sample cities used in the center's weekly mortality statement.

Officials said that during a January-February six-week period last winter, while the epidemic was at its peak, similar deaths in the same cities averaged 1,134 per week.

Widespread outbreaks of the virus, which hit the United States and Europe hard last year, have been reported this year in three states—Louisiana, Maine and Rhode Island. Moderate outbreaks have occurred in 11 states.

Health officials in Volusia County (Daytona Beach), Fla., said 2,156 cases of flu-like illnesses were reported during a seven-day period ending Feb. 11. They said West Volusia County Memorial Hospital is jammed with flu cases, including the hospital supervisor.

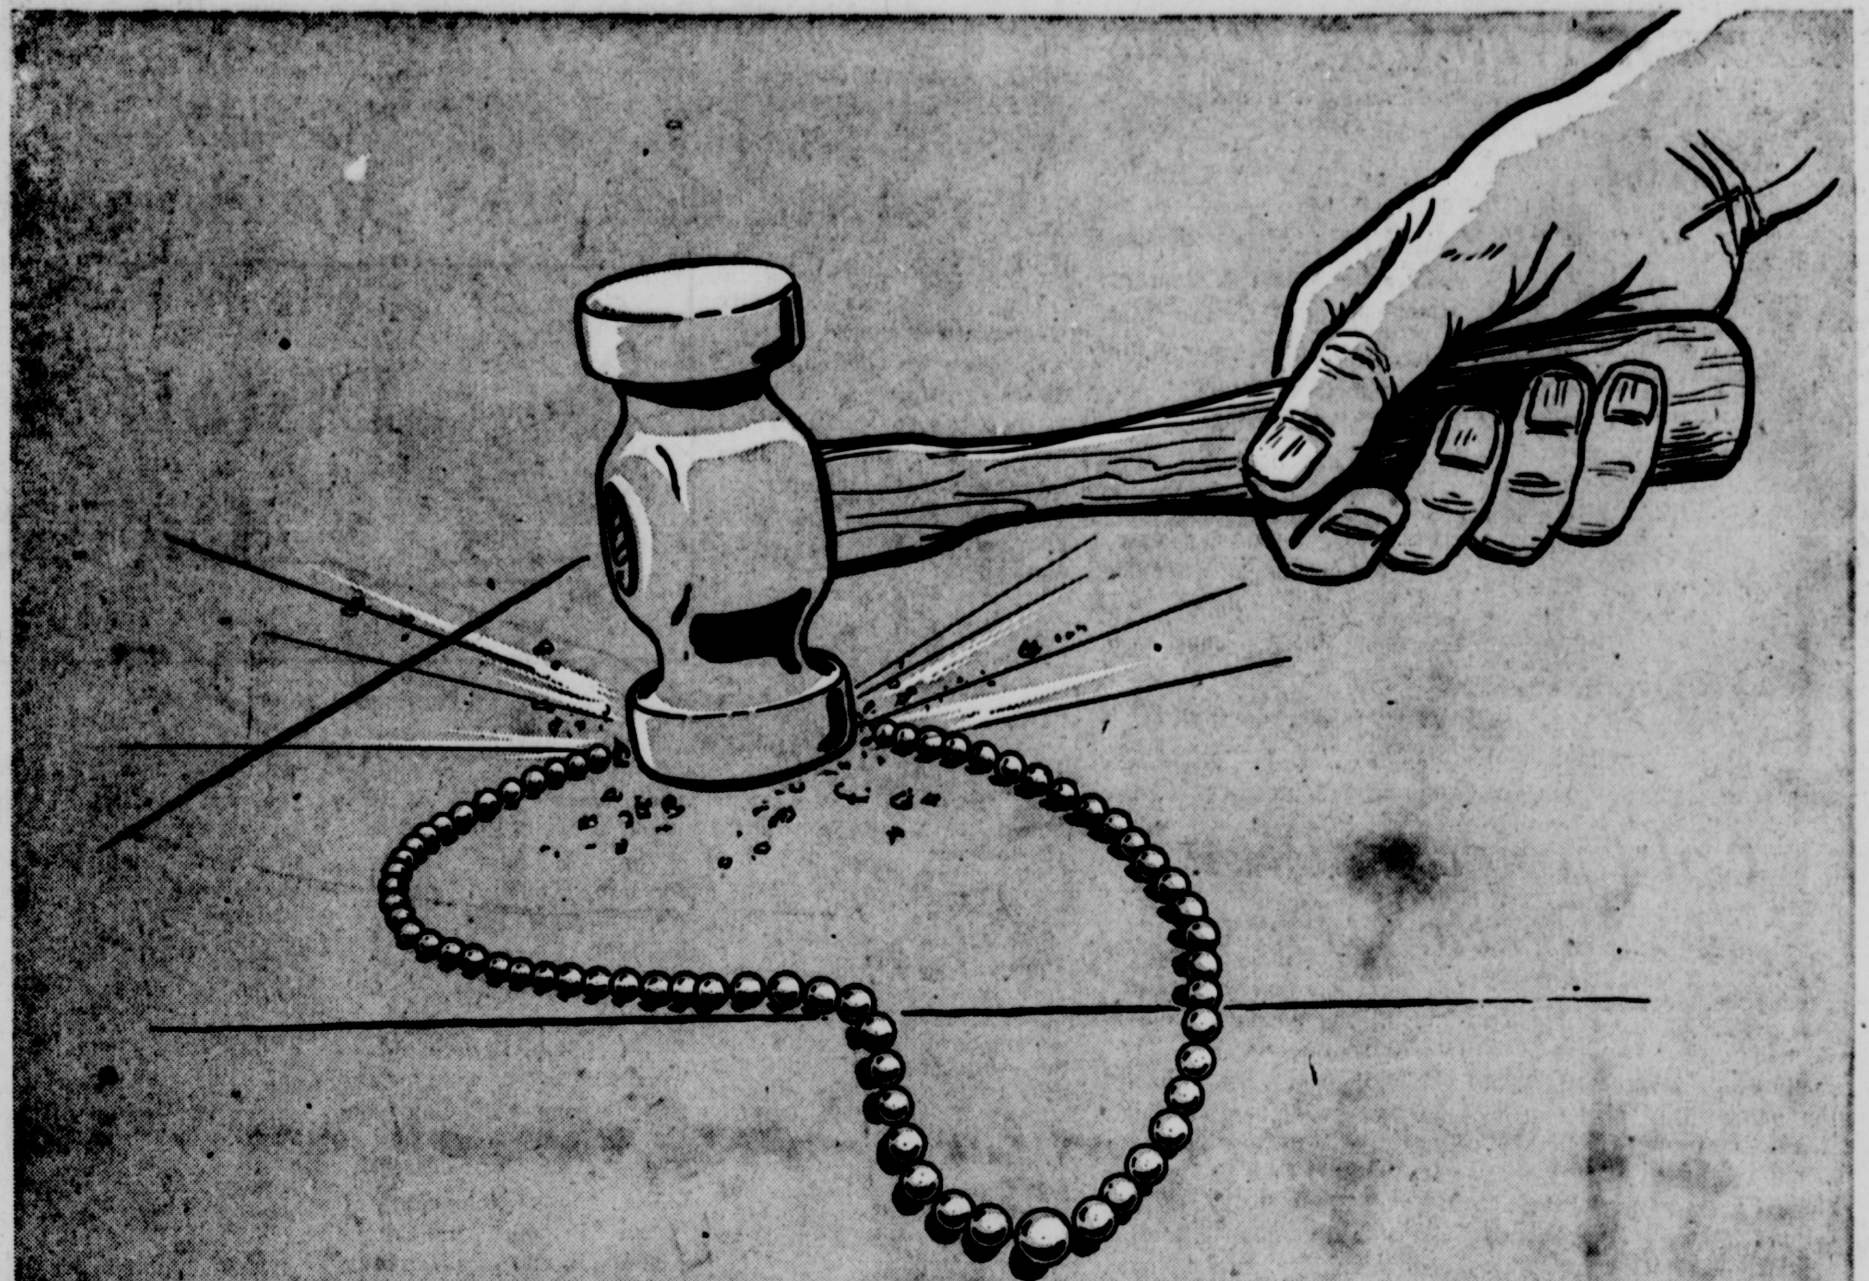

Doctors and health officials in many areas said the number of cases of flu was about normal for the season.

Of the three states where the flu is widespread, Louisiana is causing officials the most concern because there were comparatively few cases of the illness there last winter, and little immunization was built up.

States where outbreaks are classified as "moderate" by the NCDC are Vermont, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon and Alaska.

Localized outbreaks are reported in 24 states, and isolated cases in seven others.

Crushing Pearls

Some people are unable to understand certain spiritual truths. This is because they do not, with their present information and attitude, have the capacity for such understanding. This principle is stated in the sermon on the mount when Jesus said, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast your pearls before swine, lest haply they trample them under their feet, and turn and rend you" (Matthew 7:6).

Christ thus explains the inability of dogs to appreciate, spiritually, meat which had been sanctified for purposes of Jewish worship, nor would swine be able to discern the value of pearls. In both cases the animal lacks the capacity for understanding.

The trampling under feet of holy truth or "crushing pearls" therefore results from one's incapacity to understand certain teachings. This problem is encountered a number of times in the New Testament.

On the night before his death, Jesus told his apostles, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now" (John 16:12). Our Lord could have taught the apostles further along many lines, but he recognized at that point their limited capacity for spiritual understanding. They were not ready for some things.

Proof that the apostles could not grasp one of the great teachings of Christ is evidenced shortly before his ascension when they asked him: "Lord, dost thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6) So ingrained in their minds was the idea of a kingdom being visible and material — due to their historical Jewish background — that they could not comprehend the truth of Christ's church or kingdom being spiritual in nature. Yet, on the same last night Jesus had emphasized this truth: "My kingdom is not of this world" (John 18:36).

Paul spoke of the inability of the Corinthians to receive some teachings: "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, as unto babes in Christ" (1 Corinthians 3:1).

The Hebrew Christians were rebuked for their lack of spiritual growth (Hebrews 5:12-6:1). They should have advanced spiritually on the basis of the primary principles they had been taught, but the writer declares that they did not really, in fact, understand the primary principles and had need of re-teaching to obtain a genuine understanding.

"Crushing pearls" exists in our own age when individuals make light of certain spiritual truths due to their inability to fully understand and appreciate certain teachings. Failure to understand might be attributed to lack of intellectual ability, deeply ingrained traditions, or just deficient teaching.

In four succeeding messages on this theme of "Crushing Pearls," we will deal with specific spiritual teachings of Christ which are frequently misunderstood and therefore misrepresented — Christ's Teaching on Baptism, Christ's Teaching on Church Membership, Christ's Teaching on the Lord's Supper, and Christ's Teaching on Obedience.

Home Extension News

The Mini-Mites, Blue Mountain Home Extension Club, held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. William Schmidt. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Gordon Cole and Mrs. W. Schmidt.

The program for the evening was a workshop in flower making. The members were instructed how to construct various sizes and types of flowers from burlap material.

The club welcomed Mrs. Marge Bishop, Mrs. Emmie Kleemann, and Mrs. Christine Baxter as new members of the club.

The February meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Saturn. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs.

Emmie Kleemann and Mrs. Terry Pavinato. The evening's program consisted of projects for spring and Easter. The members shared recipes and displayed projects which they had constructed. Among some of the projects were: an Easter egg tree; flowers made from styrofoam egg cartons; and stuffed felt bunnies and chicks. The members explained how they had made their decorations. Tentative plans are being made to hold a workshop on learning to crochet and how to make the crocheted vests that are so popular today.

Port Ewen Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Port Ewen Fire Dept., will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, Feb. 16 at 8 p.m. in the firehouse in Port Ewen. All members are asked to attend.

St. Patrick's Dinner

The first meeting of the committee for the "Night of St. Patrick Dinner" of St. John the Evangelist Parish, Route No. 212, Veteran, was held at the rectory Monday, Feb. 2.

The date of this annual parish event will be Tuesday, Mar. 17 at 6:30 p.m.

The committee will continue to meet Monday evenings at the Rectory, until all arrangements have been completed. Parishioners are urged to attend, and lend their support to this affair for the benefit of the Parish Building Fund.

Sorosis of Kingston

Sorosis of Kingston, a chapter of the American Federation of Women's Clubs, will sponsor the Kingston High School senior art students who will enter the 1970 Hallmark Art Contest.

The artwork done by the students under the direction of Mrs. Diana Sigbert will be exhibited in the Bonanza Branch of the Kingston Savings Bank on February 20 at 1:30. Judges will be Mrs. Robert Beardsley, Mrs. Robert Angeloch and Mrs. Milton Wagenfroh. Public is invited.

May Wedding Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Grothkopp of Tilsen announce the engagement of their daughter Sandra Lee, to Wayne E. MacDonald of Lake Katrine, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Blakeslee of Kingston.

Miss Grothkopp, a 1967 graduate of Kingston High School, will be graduated from Ulster County Community College in June with an Associate Degree in Nursing.

Mr. MacDonald attended New Paltz Central High School and served two years with the U.S. Army, part of which was spent in Viet Nam. He is employed by Charles Ramsey Corporation.

A May wedding is planned.

Families Needed for Host Program

The American Host Program is a person-to-person project that brings teachers from the free nations of Europe to spend a month in the United States as guests of American families. The object is simple — to enable these teachers to gain a realistic and truthful understanding of our American life.

Mrs. Nestor Bryant of Mt. Tremper, local American Host representative, would like to find families in this area able to have a teacher as a guest in their home for a one or two week period this summer. During the months of July and August teachers from Sweden, France, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Great Britain will be visiting with American Host families in at least 38 states and the District of Columbia. All these teachers speak English.

The Bryants have in past years had teachers from England and Germany as guests in their home under the American Host Program. Their experience has been a meaningful and enjoyable one and the new friendships formed have been very rewarding.

Host families who have teachers as their guests for one or two week periods are expected to meet their visitor when he or she arrives in their city; treat the visitor as they would any other guest in their home; arrange to show the visiting teacher local points of interest and arrange visits to local schools. Because the object of the program is to enable the visiting teachers to learn something about the American way of life, host families are expected to introduce their guests to friends and neighbors so that the visitor will have an opportunity to form friendships with many Americans.

The American Host program is non-governmental. It is supported by American business firms which have learned it is "good business" to correct foreign misconceptions about our country by assisting European teachers to visit America and learn about us in the best possible manner — by living with us.

Since the start of the program in 1962, more than 1500 teachers have visited our country under the auspices of the American Host program. Each teacher spends a total of four weeks in the United States staying one or two weeks with a family.

Anyone interested in receiving an application or learning more about the American Host program is asked to contact Mrs. Nestor Bryant in Mt. Tremper. Mrs. Bryant is listed in the Woodstock telephone directory.

Mrs. DiDonna Is Re-Elected President

Mrs. Albert DiDonna was elected to a second term as president of St. Catherine Laboure Altar-Rosary Society in Lake Katrine at a meeting held January 14.

Serving with her during 1970 will be Mrs. Frank Spadafora, vice president; Mrs. Patrick Malloy, re-elected to a second term as secretary; Mrs. Thomas Wickman, treasurer. Mrs. DiDonna named the following chairmen of standing committees: Mrs. Alexander Banyo, cheer and sympathy; Mrs. Frank Spadafora, program; Mrs.

Ronald Krum, publicity; Mrs. Walter Jaffoff, delegate; Mrs. Joseph Aiello and Mrs. Anthony Augustine, kitchen; Mrs. George Fassino, newsletter; Mrs. James Lynady, telephone.

Upcoming activities will include a cake sale on March 15 after all Masses with Mrs. Norbert Wolslegal as chairman. A penny social is planned for April and a volunteer chairman is needed. The Society's fashion show will be held May 19 with Mrs. James Perry as chairman. Mrs. Marvin Weber is chairman of the mother-daughter communion breakfast date of which will be announced. Mrs. Joseph Aiello and Mrs. Robert Fescio are co-chairmen of the June Special Dinner.

At the February 18 meeting, Mrs. Francis Houck will be guest speaker. A film will be shown and Daniel Leahy, executive director of the Ulster County Chapter, Association of Retarded Children, will conduct a question and answer period. Friends of members are invited. Refreshments will be served.

parents and is employed by the State of New York National Bank in Kingston; Mrs. George E. Barringer, the proud mother; and a happy father, Patrolman George Barringer. Runners up to Miss Barringer were Darlene Van Laer and Laura Bogart.

HOME FROM SCHOOL—The 1970 Valentine winner is 18 years old, stands 5 ft. 10½ inches, is a blonde with brown eyes. A senior at Kingston High School, she is majoring in Clerical Practice and is employed part-time by Diskay's. She loves to bowl, swim and go camping with her family. Her hobby is sewing.

AT HER STUDIES—When Bonnie Barringer is graduated from Kingston High School, she may enter Ulster County Community College. She dates Robert Cole of Ulster Park, a senior at Kingston High School and soloist with the Kingston Indians. Miss Barringer is the third Valentine winner. The first was Nancy Beckert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Beckert of Lake Katrine, and the second was Merriann Motzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Motzer of Rosendale. A total of 7,605 votes were cast in this year's contest and Bonnie captured 3,343 of them.

MIRRORED REFLECTION—Black cats and mirrors—these will never mean anything superstitious to Bonnie Barringer for it was on Friday the 13th she learned about her victory in the Freeman's Valentine Contest. It will always be her lucky day—with one possible exception. When she learned about the news naming her a finalist in the contest, she became so excited she fell down some stairs, crashed into a closet door and bent a pole lamp. But, then again, that wasn't on the 13th, so it just doesn't count!

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 14, 1970

The Fifth Estate

Tradition has it that the nobility, the clergy and the commons constitute the three governing estates. Edward Burke added the press, as the fourth estate. The other night, we may have seen the revelation of a fifth estate little known by the public. That may be identified as the President's counsellors, a group of confidants who change with every President and even with every matter on which he wants counsel and advice.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson revealed the system when he told in his series of televised biographical sketches how he reached the decision to halt the bombing of North Vietnam as a step he hoped would lead to peace. We are not concerned here with his disappointment that it did not bring peace, rather with the way the President makes up his mind on a matter of serious national importance.

As Johnson told it, he gathered the best minds in the country—both in and out of the administration—Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford, former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Justice Abe Fortas, former Justice Arthur Goldberg, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Earle G. Wheeler, Army Chief of Staff William Westmoreland, and others, to advise him.

The point is, some of these men had responsibility in the conduct of the war. Others no longer did, or never did. They were chosen by the President for their wisdom and knowledge. It reminded one of the group President Kennedy gathered around him to advise him in the confrontation with the Soviet Union over missiles in Cuba, and over the Bay of Pigs invasion. Those men also were handpicked by the President.

The burdens of the presidency are so great, each one finds a way to bear them. Woodrow Wilson had his Col. Edward M. House, Warren Harding his Harry Daugherty, Calvin Coolidge his R. H. Stearns, Franklin D. Roosevelt his Harry Hopkins, Harry Truman his Gen. Vaughn, Dwight Eisenhower his Sherman Adams. By the time John Kennedy arrived on the scene, the problems had become so great and so complex, he began calling large groups to advise him. And so did Lyndon B. Johnson. Thus a new fifth estate was born. The fifth estate advises, but the President decides. His is the ultimate responsibility.

No Longer "The Poor"

An inner office memorandum circulated at the Office of Economic Opportunity advises the staff to drop the words "the poor" in talking about their clients, and instead use the phrase "low income individuals."

The memo, written by Carol Khosrovi, chief of the congressional relations staff, states that Director Donald Rumsfeld does not like the phrases "antipoverty" or "the poor."

Rumsfeld explained that "low income individuals" described more adequately various categories of individuals in need of help. He objected to the term "antipoverty" because it is part of the "war mentality." For instance, he believed OEO was oversold as a "war on poverty" when its budget was, and is, too limited to accomplish the job.

We don't believe that Rumsfeld has called off the war on poverty. He is apparently containing it within the budget he has been given. He is not going in for encouraging great expectations, as previous administrations have done. He is emphasizing the opportunities for training and for jobs as a means of reducing poverty, rather than mounting a frontal attack on poverty which he does not have the money to maintain. Disappointments have caused riots in the past.

After eight years, the poor are still with us. It may be better tactics to help them overcome their poverty, rather than try to buy them out of it.

David Lawrence Says Will Labor, CR Increase Their Hold on Congress?

WASHINGTON — During the present period, preceding the Congressional elections to be held in November, there is a strange feeling of incertitude in both parties. The Democrats, while trying to reorganize and raise enough money to help their candidates for the Senate and House, are displaying evidence of some concern. The Republicans seem less worried about the outlook, but the fact is neither side is as yet sure of just what the issues will be.

If President Nixon were running this year, conditions would be different. The criticisms by the Democrats could then be focused on certain public policies he has announced, while his supporters could "point with pride" to the fact that he has won a high popularity rating. But when it comes to individual candidates for Congress, there are few important issues thus far on which the average voter will be evaluating a candidate for either the Senate or the House.

The situation is one that is likely to be relished, however, by some of the national associations that conduct powerful lobbies in Congress. In recent elections it has been estimated that labor unions have directly or indirectly spent as much as 60 million dollars in a single year to help elect Congressional candidates of their choice. Civil-rights organizations, particularly in Northern states, have played a major part in swinging votes in populous areas.

The big question is not going to be whether the Republicans or Democrats control the next Congress, but the extent to which the labor union and civil-rights leaders may increase their hold on members in both Houses irrespective of party.

There are several instances in the North where Republicans in Congress have deserted their party on crucial issues, yet will be seeking election on the Republican ticket. Will they be opposed in the primaries by Republicans holding a different view, and will the administration seek to have its opponents in Congress defeated? In recent years neither Republican nor Democratic administrations have intervened very much in local congressional contests.

It has been suggested that President Nixon will in general urge the country to elect a Republican Congress. But if he does so, he will be asking that certain Republicans be chosen who do not support the President on vital issues. If it were not for Democrats who reflect popular sentiment in their communities, Mr. Nixon would not be able to put through some major pieces of legislation. He cannot openly advocate the election of those Democrats.

Altogether, there is an absence of party responsibility today. Congressional elections, therefore, are local affairs. Often the outcome depends upon which candidate has the most money behind him in the primaries to get the nomination and later to win the election itself.

Perhaps the point of greatest importance is that, if the Republicans obtain a majority in either or both houses, they will be able to appoint the chairmen of committees, thus displacing the men who have been presiding over these groups for years. Many of them have been cooperating with the administration. In theory, the President should have a majority in both Houses and the chairmen of the committees should be of his own party so that the legislative machinery can operate smoothly. But in the last two decades there have been times when opposite parties have been in control of Congress and the Presidency.

The 1970 Congressional elections may bring into office more Republicans and could even result in a Republican majority if times are good. But the Democrats are hoping to make an issue of the high cost of living. The Republicans, on the other hand, are bound to blame inflation on the eight years of Democratic rule in Congress and the White House.

Actually, when the votes are finally counted, it will be found that in many districts the deciding factors were local rather than national, along with the use of campaign funds furnished by the powerful lobbying organizations which control so many members of Congress today.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Once upon a time there was a nut who walked the boardwalk at Atlantic City with his size eight feet in a pair of size six shoes. Each step was a lightning bolt of pain and when a buddy asked him why, he said: "My business is bankrupt; my wife ran off with my partner; my son is a tone-deaf hippie who can't play a guitar and the only pleasure I get out of life is at night when I take these damned shoes off."

Some people are born losers. No amount of effort or intellect can put them on a winning syndrone. They invent drinks called Six-and-a-half Up; they design automobiles called Edsel; conjure typewriters with 25 letters; design boats with signs in the bottom: "To let water out of hull, pull plug."

The world is full of losers. These are people who, through no fault of their own, manage to roll a seven on the second toss of the dice. There was a handsome loser, whom I am pleased to call Courtney Farraday, who lived in Burlingame, California, not far from the great avenue of trees leading to the country club.

Mr. Farraday, as we pick him up, is a sixtysix-year-old, tall and slender clotheshorse with the bored unflappable attitude of the true gentleman. His grandfather was a be-whiskered, tobacco-spitting miner who discovered copper. The Farradays, perched at the top of the world, had more millions than anyone could toss to the winds.

Courtney managed to do it, although there are economists around who insist that it is an impossibility. Sometimes the true loser is the last to know. In Courtney Farraday's case, he realized early in life that he couldn't win playing against himself. If a passing grade in school was 75, Courtney came romping home with a 74 or 73.

If there was a college fraternity dance on Saturday, Courtney dated the most beautiful girl and she broke a leg on Friday. If he was driving at 20 miles per hour, he was flagged down by a cop who had just been bawled out by a sergeant and got a summons for doing 60. When Courtney's dear old daddy died, Farraday inherited the copper mine and promptly sold it to his lawyer for half price.

He bought an 85-foot yacht and saved money by sailing it himself, instead of hiring a captain. It wasn't until the boat tried to climb up a submerged rock off Monterey that he recalled he had forgotten to insure it. The only time he ever said anything right was when he observed: "You know, in all my life I don't think I've done anything right."

Rather late in life, Courtney fell in love with a redhead who was built like a fire hydrant. It wasn't until the honeymoon was over that he found he couldn't introduce her to any of his friends—they knew her better than he. In despair, he sued for divorce and the little lady left with most of Courtney's worldly goods glued to her polished fingers.

He tried investments and these turned out to be slightly less than profitable. He bought a New York dress house with a terrific inventory and found that everything was call length in a year when the ladies were busy exposing their modesty. A few odd million was plunged deeply into a defense industry and that was the year America stopped making new bombers.

The impossible, in time, became possible. Dear old Courtney, the man who wore a size 3 and 1/2 hat, went broke. He lost his huge home, all the sports cars, cockeyed girl friends, even the humidifier in which he kept his watch. When his lawyers finished typing the final papers, Courtney had just enough credit left to borrow a pen and sign on the dotted line.

He walked the hilly streets of San Francisco, a gold-headed cane under his arm, nodding to people who didn't nod back. One of the lawyers who had helped to shear Courtney Farraday felt sorry for him. He took the ex-millionaire to lunch and said: "Are you too proud to take a job?"

"Why," said Courtney blustering with outrage, "not on your life." The lawyer smiled. "Then I have a job for you. The pay isn't great and the work is on your feet all day, but—" "I'll take it," said the all-time loser. "I was never averse to work, sir. It may not be too late for me to do something right."

The lawyer drove across town and stopped before an elegant building. "This," he said with reverence, "is my club. I can get you a job as a waiter." Courtney Farraday choked. "I can't take it," he said. "But why?" the lawyer shrieked.

"Because," Courtney said, "I happen to be a member myself."

Jack Anderson Says LBJ Frightened Officials Into Getting Rid of Lincolns

WASHINGTON — Suspicious eyebrows have been raised over what appears to be federal discrimination against Lincoln limousines. This has led us to investigate the report that the Republicans are partial to Cadillacs because of Henry Ford's 1964 defection to the Democrats.

Our surprising discovery: It wasn't President Nixon but his predecessor, Lyndon Johnson, who was responsible for bringing hard times on government Lincolns.

LBJ not only was a close friend of Henry Ford but liked to herd cattle in Lincolns. Shortly after he moved into the White House, however, he noticed a profusion of taxpayer-owned Lincolns cluttering up government driveways.

He was in one of those turn-off-the-lights-in-the-White House moods, say intimates. He was also newly mindful of his status as The Chief, and didn't appreciate the spectacle of lesser individuals being driven around town in the same style as the President.

"What are all these Lincoln doing around here?" he growled at aides. He suggested pointedly that his subordinates find less extravagant means of transportation.

Who's Who in the government hierarchy, meanwhile, can be calculated by the sleekness of their limousines. Each cabinet officer is entitled to one luxury-class limousine. Exceptions: The State Department is authorized two, and the Defense Department rates ten.

Other top brass ride around town in Cadillac Fleetwoods and Chrysler Crowns. Such everyday departments as Agriculture, Justice, Labor and Health, Education and Welfare are allotted four cars in this class. The privileged Pentagon, of course, gets 76.

Overflowing Motor Pool. Lesser officials are obliged to travel in Chevrolets, Fords and Plymouths. There is no way for a simple newsman to sort out all these cars. Some are assigned to specific agencies; others belong to a huge government motor pool. Some are bought; some are leased; a few are used by one agency but charged to another agency's budget.

In any event, the line-up of glossy government cars at a big Washington function, is enough to take a taxpayer's breath away. Like Hertz, the taxpayers have put a lot of bigwigs and bureaucrats in the driver's seat since the 1930s when only agency heads rated government automobiles. Anyone else who required transportation around Washington was given a streetcar token.

Today, it sometimes seems as if half of official Washington is driving the other half around.

Cabinet officers, incidentally, are permitted to use their glory wagons for private as well as official purposes, and their wives often are driven to the supermarket in sumptuous style. This is a sore point with Senators and Supreme Court Justices who have no standing at the government motor pool.

Only the Chief Justice and Senate and House Leaders are entitled to limousine service. The others, though they outrank the chauffeur-driven Assistant Secretaries, pilot their own cars and console themselves by displaying low-number license plates.

Note: FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is driven around in a custom-built, bullet-proof limousine straight out of James Bond. Undoubtedly, he would be safe pedaling a bicycle, for no crook would be likely to knock off the Top Cop and provoke the wrath of the mighty FBI.

Laos Is Not Potential Vietnam

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Last month Senate Foreign Relations Chairman J. W. Fulbright decided to serve the nation by passing on, via the Congressional Record, a dovish critic's suggestion that the "little war" in Laos might balloon into a "huge, ugly war like Vietnam."

Let's try to get that one in sensible perspective.

Laos does have the space for it. North and South Vietnam together make up 100,000 square miles. Laos is nearly 50 percent larger than South Vietnam alone. (Laos is a bit smaller than Oregon.)

Population is something else. By present estimates, the combined total of the two Vietnams is 38 million people. Laos has just 2.8 million. More than half of these are hill peoples scattered all over the tangled Laotian hills. By contrast, South Vietnam's hill tribes, though they occupy 60 percent of the nation's land, account for less than five percent of the 18 million population total.

Certainly the total fighting force in Vietnam or adjacent backup areas like Cambodia must range between 1,750,000 and 2,000,000 men—including U. S. forces, South Vietnamese regulars and home units, the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

In northern Laos, where the fighting for that country is centered, it would be a surprise if total forces on both sides much exceed 200,000. North Vietnam's 50,000 is the biggest single unit. Some 10,000 Meo tribesmen on the government side have been holding the strategic Plain of Jars and may now have to yield it under new Red pressure.

Much of the Laotian government's "fighting force" is that in name only, though sources say some units are improved. The same goes for the Red Path Lao, who have been directed from the start by Hanoi and are today largely relegated to secondary, non-combat roles by the fighting North Vietnamese regulars.

Critics who like to talk of America's "secret war" in Laos make much of the presence of CIA agents, military advisers in civilian dress (most not now members of U. S. armed forces), helicopters and their pilots, planes and their pilots—with the aircraft used for everything from combat support of government armies to dropping relief supplies to refugees (some 600,000 are repeatedly on the move).

Well, the scale of this activity is up some, it is known for sure. But as a phenomenon it goes back to 1954. Most of the time since then, the United States has been training, paying, advising and even directing in combat the non-Red Laotian forces.

The critics say we are "running the war." Most likely, yes. But one way or another we have been doing it for a long time. The only difference today is some advance in the number of U. S. personnel involved (guessed at 2,150), and some change in the scale and character of their activities.

Our government will not talk about these particular things, and the critics who have intended to be boldest in their charges reveal nothing that has not gone on in one degree or another for years.

By the time Lyndon Johnson opted for a big U. S. military role in Vietnam in 1965, we already had 23,300 advisers, helicopter units and others in that country. The first of some 50 U. S. Special Forces camps was set up in the highlands in 1961, with some Americans leading the fighting as well as training the famous "Montagnards."

There is no sign (indeed, much to the contrary) that we are going to enlarge our advisory role on the scale reached in Vietnam by 1965. Nor is there any automatic compulsion to introduce big ground force elements even if we do still more than now.

From 1965 through 1968, we flew some 360,000 sorties (often in mission groups) over North Vietnam, using fighter-bombers and a surprisingly few B-52s. The yearly sortie average was 90,000. The bomb tonnage was immense.

We note the conceded step-up in Laos in 1968-70. But given the limiting factors of weather, haze, sporadic seasonal combat, small population, the rugged terrain in Southeast Asia's least-developed nation, the focus on the Ho trail, our air combat in Laos is being badly misrepresented by critics as threatening a huge new war.

BERRY'S WORLD

Do you MIND? The "no-knock" provision is NOT in effect around here!

TEEN SCENE: How to Know Your Real Valentine

By LEI

You know you've fallen in love the year you stop buying packages of 100 valentines for 59c and spend 59 cents on one valentine, instead. Well, you've taken a big step, anyway—you've discovered it isn't the number of people you love, but how well you love one person. The next step is to realize that a big red heart crayoned on theme paper and a smile can mean more than the biggest card on the dime-store shelf, because it says, "I love you" as only you can. What you spend has nothing to do with how much you love.

Falling in love is a big part of the teen years, starting with falling in love with a singer or a teacher, and often ending with meeting the person you will marry soon after graduation. Even if you don't marry for several decades, your attitude toward the opposite sex will be formed by the experiences you meet in your teen romances.

Right now, you're probably very sure you are in love with whoever you bought that Valentine for, and you want them to know it, or you wouldn't have sent it. Maybe they sent you one, too, and suddenly the weather is 20 degrees warmer, the snow looks pink, and you borrow your parents' Frank Sinatra album and start looking up the requirements for marriage in New York State.

You've had crushes and crushes and puppy love and summer romances, but this is the real thing. You can tell it is because . . . Because what?

How can you tell real love, the kind that's going to last until the planet splits, from the less serious attractions that are one of the happy manifestations of being young?

You're really in love when it doesn't matter if she's a little cross-eyed or he's a head shorter, you feel so good when you're together. You have the same ideas and you get fun out of the same things. You learn you both liked the same zany joke—Before you even met.

You're really in love when you don't realize you love the nicest kid in the class. You have stopped comparing. You don't realize you like Sandra better than the beautiful blonde you took to the beach last summer, because you don't even remember the blonde, or last summer. All that's important is next summer—your first summer with Sandra.

If you love someone because of your mutual hopes and dreams and ideals and jokes and ambitions, your love will be more likely to withstand the changes time brings to all of us. After all, some day that boy with the dynamite sideburns and the Mustang convertible will be your grandfather's age, getting bald and middle-age spread and wearing bifocals—but if you love the right things about him, it won't matter.

When you really love, the words "Until death do us part" seem incongruous, because you realize death can't part you, as long as your hearts are together.

You're really in love when your idea of a great evening together is taking a long walk in the snow. Or reading favorite poems to each other. Or playing a silly checker game that neither of you wants to win, because it would mean the other would lose.

You're really in love when you fight sometimes just so you can make up. And you get terribly angry at each other, but you never hit at the emotional sore spots each of you has.

You're really in love when each of you knows you are loved by the other without being told—but you still tell each other anyway. You're really in love when you recognize his or her shortcomings—but they don't like shortcomings, anymore.

It's really love when you suddenly think of your loved one in the middle of math class—and later you learn he thought of you, right then. It's really love when you share each other's moods without being told what they are.

You're in love when you don't have to be hugging and holding hands every minute, because just a glance across a room can express as much as all the caresses in the world. It's really love when your steps match when you walk together, and every song is your song when you hear it together. It's love when the greyest, coldest day is beautiful, because someone very special is alive that day, too.

Most of all, it's love when you no longer wonder if you're really in love. You just know that, however you are, you want to stay that way forever. And if you want to enough, you will.

Victoria St. John of Kingston, a Briarcliff freshman, was observing the interaction of four "young" and four "old" nursery school children with certain toys, as a basis for an empirical psychological evaluation. As the girls leave to return to their colleges, the nursery school welcomes a senior, Barbara Morgenstern, from the Department of Early Childhood of the State University College at

New Paltz, who will be doing her first 9-week practice teaching assignment under direction of Mrs. Benjamin Emerick, director and founder of Fair Street Nursery School.

Andrea, incidentally goes back to the Cazenovia campus under an academic banner. She was named to the dean's list for the fall semester at the central New York State college.

Honors to Youth in News

A number of activities occupy Ulster County youth away at school.

Shari Kalish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kalish of 15 Juniper Lane, Woodstock, is junior at Russell Sage College, Troy, recently volunteered to work with the Taylor Community Club, a student-run group that assists children from low income families in recreational and tutorial activities.

Eugene Gaffken of Hurley was one of eight students representing the Peddie School of Hightstown, N. J., at the Buck Hill Falls Conference last weekend.

Sponsored by the Council for Religion in Independent Schools, these annual events at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., are attended by students from independent schools all along the Eastern seaboard. The theme of this year's conference which ran from Feb. 6-8 was "To Affirm or Deny." Principal speakers were the Rev. Fitz Simmons Allison from Virginia Theological Seminary and the Rev. Hubert Maultsby of Morris-town, N. J.

Gaffken, who is a senior at Peddie, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Gaffken. Meanwhile two Kingston girls are making beautiful music on the Ithaca College campus as members of the school orchestra. Both Susan Hartman, junior and Teri Marcus, a sophomore, are violinists with the orchestra which is one of the oldest and most respected college musical groups in the East. Both are graduates of Kingston High School and both are majoring in music.

With all this activity, honors are not forgotten. Holly C. Seitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Seitz of 85 Washington Avenue, Kingston, was named to the dean's list for the fall semester at State University of New York at Albany. Holly, a sophomore, is majoring in history and anthropology with an eye to going in for museum work. She is doing volunteer tasks at the State Museum in conjunction with her career plans. She is a graduate of Kingston High School.

Another dean's list honor student is Cadet Stephen Olsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Olsen of 72 Northfield Street, Kingston. Olsen is a freshman at the United States Military Academy at West Point. In addition to maintaining a 3.34 average, Olsen is cadet-in-charge of the Fourth Class Chain. Kingstonian Jerry Ausanio rolled up honors on the west coast during the fall quarter. A student at Big Bend Community College, Moses Lake, Washington, he was named to the high scholastic list for first semester work. Three Ulster County residents were among the 69 Orange County Community College students who received associate degrees at the end of the fall term. They are John Edler of Wallkill who received a degree in accounting; Lorraine Kent of Ellenville, medical laboratory technology and Bonnie Waters of Napanoch, recreation supervision. The graduates will be invited to participate in the college's annual commencement ceremonies in June.

Barbara Neumann, editor-in-chief of the 1970 Huguenot and Pat Wilson, Huguenot business manager served as toastmasters.

Honors citations were accorded two Ulster County girls who are students at the Vassar Brothers Hospital School of Nursing, Poughkeepsie and are taking affiliated courses at Dutchess Community College.

Marilyn S. Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Atkinson and Elise Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Arnold, both of Woodstock, Society of Brothers, Rifton were so cited.

RVHS Rings and Things

STONE RIDGE When the junior class of Rondout Valley Central High School gets together tonight for the traditional Ring Dance and its accompanying ceremonies, the high school cafeteria will be resound to the music of The Coming Generation, a Kingston group.

Decorations will follow the Valentine motif, as will the heart-shaped arch through which class members will pass to receive their rings.

Committee chairmen are Sue Wilson, Decorations; Charlene Rowe, Tickets; Michael Alecca, Advertising; and Leslie Greene, Food. About 10 p.m. the highlight of the evening, the crowning of the Ring Dance King and Queen, will take place. Seven boys and seven girls were voted upon for these titles, and the remaining couples will attend the "royal couple."

Candidates for the King are Michael Alecca, Dennis Baney, Griffin Graham, Doug Holly, Chuck Marshall, John Panacione and John Ryder. The Queen will be Sue Dorfner, Linda Markle, Cindy Raymond, Nancy Schultz, Nancy Sherman, Karen Terwilliger, or Sue Wilson.

The dance will begin at 8 p.m. and continue until midnight. For refreshments, a smorgasbord will be provided by members of the junior class.

Officers of the class of 1971 are president, Doug Holly; vice president, Bruce Burr; secretary, Pat Decker, and treasurer, Griff Graham. Class advisers are Miss Lynne Cullinane, Paul Gillis and Harry Purcell.

And while the juniors are dancing, plans are being made for another Rondout Valley event.

The Rondout Valley Middle

School Band Booster Club will hold a talent show in the RVCS auditorium on Saturday, March 7.

Auditions for the show will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 27 at the Rondout Valley High School.

Harry M. Thayer, president of radio station WGHQ, will be the master of ceremonies for the talent show.

Entry blanks for the show are in area stores and at both the high and middle school offices. Interested persons may pick up entry blanks and mail them to the Rondout Valley Middle School.

Proceeds of the Band Booster Talent Show will be used to purchase blazers for the Middle School band.

The high school band too is planning a number of events within the next few weeks.

On Feb. 28 the boys and girls of the band will be at the high school cafeteria preparing for the now-famous spaghetti and meatball supper. The students and their director, Lee Herrington, will start the sauce from scratch and will cook it all day until serving time at 5 p.m. A yearly average of some 1,200 meatballs are also prepared and served.

Last year this fund-raising project was not held, due to the austerity budget, but it is back again. The band hopes that all of its old customers plus many new ones will attend.

Tickets will be on sale soon and they may be purchased from band members or band boosters. Ticket purchases should be made in advance since only a limited number will be sold at the door.

This year, for the first time, sauce will be sold at the supper. Orders must be placed in advance with the students, and patrons must bring own containers.

Also on the February agenda is an important meeting of the Ulster County Council of CYO Teen Clubs to be held Sunday 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's School. Agenda items include symposium on narcotics addiction, annual dinner dance, teen mission and Ulster IMPACT session at Blair Lodge, Putnam Valley, March 20, 21 and 22. Rita Mary Senor, council president, urges all CYO teens to attend this important planning session.

Carnival Heads February List

KINGSTON Mardi Gras may be over but it is carnival time nonetheless.

Plans are being finalized for the 10th annual Winter Carnival sponsored by the Student Council of Kingston High School. The gala galaxy of games will be presented at the Kate Walton Field House Feb. 28 from 1 to 5 and 7 to 11 p.m.

There will be awards, refreshments and dancing to the music of one of the popular local bands. General chairman this year is Eddie Brown. Mrs. Mildred DeWitt is advisor. Proceeds are used for scholarship grants.

Also on the February agenda is an important meeting of the Ulster County Council of CYO Teen Clubs to be held Sunday 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's School. Agenda items include symposium on narcotics addiction, annual dinner dance, teen mission and Ulster IMPACT session at Blair Lodge, Putnam Valley, March 20, 21 and 22. Winter Whirl With Eye on Summer

KINGSTON Activities at the Kingston Ulster County YMCA are reaching a mid-winter peak even while details of summer programs are being finalized.

One of the most popular winter programs is proving to be the new junior and senior high school Gymnastic Club for Girls. The group meets Thursday afternoons from 4 to 5 p.m. with Mrs. Joan McGrane who is instructing the girls in all women's gymnastic events. There is still time for interested girls to come on down and tramp on the trampoline.

Another program at the YMCA which just got under way this week is the annual scuba course. The instruction in scuba and skin diving techniques will continue for 15 weeks, combining classroom instruction with practical application in the pool. Paul Wotasek is instructor under the guidance of Mike Schovel, nationally certified scuba instructor.

A less strenuous but just as exciting course is being offered Saturday mornings. Starting to day 9 a.m. beginners guitar lessons are being offered. Classes are limited to eight members and there are a few openings in the 10-week course. Budding musicians may contact the Y for further information.

For 12 to 14 year olds who want to stay in the swim, the junior life saving course will start Monday 7:15 p.m. The 10-week course will culminate in final exams leading to certification as a YMCA Junior Life Saver, a pre-requisite for many summer employment opportunities.

And speaking of summer—the YMCA has announced a special co-educational European student tour to Austria, Italy, Germany and Switzerland this summer for high school girls and boys, according to Robert D. Stubbs, Executive Director.

Leaving Saturday, Aug. 8 and returning Friday, Aug. 28, the young people from the Kingston YMCA will be joining groups from other YMCAs throughout the state traveling through four countries by motor coach with expert guides all the way. Stops will be made in such cities as Zermatt, Florence, Rome, San Marino, Munich, Innsbruck and Milan as well as many others. Stubbs said that chaperones for the trip would be hand-picked by YMCA directors, will have had experience in traveling and handling young people, and yet be young enough to be popular and understanding with young adults.

Stubbs said that other overseas trips as well as summer overseas service opportunities are available through the YMCA to both high school and college young people. Persons interested should contact the YMCA at 507 Broadway.

For those staying closer to home this summer, the camp committee has announced dates for the coming season.

The four two week camping periods will be June 29 through Aug. 21. First period will be June 29 through July 10; second, July 13 through July 24; third, July 27 through Aug. 7; fourth, Aug. 10 through Aug. 21.

Most of last year's staff will be returning according to the committee. Applications will be in the mail to all members in a few weeks and those interested are advised to make plans now.

Closer at hand is the school holiday trip to Montfort Reptile Institute in Dutchess County. Plans have been made for Monday, Feb. 23 with the bus leaving the YMCA at 9:45 a.m. and returning at about 12:30 p.m. All youth members and their guests may attend.

Moss Sinks Winning Basket in Last 4 Seconds

UCCC Captures Title With 97-95 Squeaker

HOT AND HEAVY!—That's how the action was last night at the Municipal Auditorium as Westchester and Ulster clashed head-on in the game of the year. In this picture, Westchester's John Iasillo (55) has just blocked a pass into the key. Ulster's Ray Lindhorst (34) and Jerry Moss (44) look on. Big Cazzie Scores 35

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A seat on the New York bench isn't Cazzie Russell's idea of the place to be...unless the Knickerbockers happen to be sitting on a 49-point lead.

Russell, who finally earned a spot in New York's starting lineup three games ago when Bill Bradley was sidelined with an ankle injury, sat out the fourth quarter of the Knicks' 151-106 National Basketball Association romp over Philadelphia.

But, this time, the former Michigan All-American enjoyed the view from the bench...after pouring in 35 points as the Eastern Division leaders turned an 80-point first half blitz into the worst thrashing ever absorbed by the 76ers.

While the Knicks cut their division-clinching magic number to 14, Detroit trimmed Phoenix 132-120; Cincinnati whipped San Francisco 128-110 and Seattle edged Baltimore 141-139.

In American Basketball Association play, Carolina shaded Los Angeles 95-91 and Washington topped New Orleans 141-101. The Knicks spurred to a 38-23 first quarter lead, piled it up to 80-46 at halftime and breezed the rest of the way with reserves completing the runaway. Dick Barnett, who tallied 25 points, also sat out the entire fourth quarter.

Jim Washington scored 24 for the 76ers, whose seventh loss in the last nine games left them four games ahead of idle Boston in the battle for the fourth and last playoff spot in the East.

Terry Dischinger popped for 27 points and Detroit, team mates Jimmy Walker and Dave Bing added 25 and 21, respectively, as the Pistons extended Phoenix's losing string to three games.

Tom Van Arsdale, Johnny Green and Connie Diecking split 24 points in a third period rally that carried the Royals past San Francisco. Van Arsdale finished with 34 points, Diecking hit for 25 and Green added 20.

KINGSTON

Jerry Moss would rather forget the first 39 minutes of Friday night's tumultuous Mid-Hudson Conference showdown between UCCC and Westchester Community at the municipal auditorium.

But neither he nor the overflow crowd will ever forget the clutch basket he fired with four seconds left to play to give Ulster a spectacular 97-95 squeaker over the late charging Vikings for its third consecutive conference championship under Coach Mike Perry.

As long as basketball is played at UCCC, so long will live the names of Tony Pough, Linnell Marshall, Glenn Berry, Ray Lindhorst and the others who engineered what Coach Perry described as "the most rewarding victory of my coaching career." This was a classic win.

Shackled by Fouls

Shackled by fouls in the early going, Moss sat out 10 minutes of the first half, was lifted again in the second half. And then with Westchester charging down the stretch on a wave of torrid shooting by ace Steve Washington, Coach Perry gave his brilliant captain a second chance to redeem himself.

This time, Moss didn't fail. Washington, who scored 18 of 26 points in the second half, tied the score at 95-95 with two quick baskets — a layup and a steal.

Blew Good Lead

The UCCC heroes who waited for the moment of Moss' redemption had a 93-87 lead with 2:45 remaining but in the next two minutes, Westchester closed the gap to 95-93 and Washington tied it at 95-95.

"This was a great win," said Coach Perry, still visibly moved by UCCC's historic triumph. "Glenn Berry and Ray Lindhorst were outstanding," he added. "Linnell Marshall (top scorer with 25 points) played like I knew he could play. He rose to the occasion. Tony Pough gave us the early momentum and Lindhorst was great around the boards."

Perry was also impressed by Westchester's ability to press Ulster even though Washington sat out six minutes of the first half with three fouls. "They have the best depth of any team in the league," he said.

Arietta Magnanimous

Coach Ralph Arietta of Westchester revealed himself as a man of real class. Despite the heart-crushing defeat he was magnanimous in his praise of the Senators.

"We lost to a great team," said Arietta. There is no question but that Ulster is the greatest team around. I only hope we get another chance at them in the regionals."

The score was tied seven times in the early going, the last at 24-24, before UCCC boiled to a 50-37 margin at halftime and led until

Washington's last basket.

The clock showed 40 seconds.

Westchester moved down court, lost the ball out of bounds and now there were 12 seconds left.

UCCC moved toward the Broadway basket and Moss maneu-vered himself into his favorite corner spot. Swish, and UCCC was ahead, 97-95, and still champion.

The huge crowd surged on the floor, ecstatically pummeling

the UCCC players. But the game wasn't over.

Referee Jack Toner moved to the officials table and notified

Richie Amato, the clock operator, that there were still four seconds to play, despite the

Highland Upsets Rondout 43-42 to Take UCAL Lead

By MORT LAFFIN

STONE RIDGE

Spurred on by an outstanding performance from All-UCAL guard John Crawford, the visiting cagers from Highland downed Rondout Valley Friday night, in a 43-42 thriller with first place in the Ulster County Athletic League at stake.

The victory put the Highlanders into the top spot at 9-2, with one game, against Onteora, left to play. Rondout is now 8-2 and must face Pine Bush and Wall-kill.

More than 1,000 screaming fans, crammed into every available space in the Gander gym, saw Crawford author the victory for the visitors in what has to be considered as one of the "Greatest Games Ever Played" in UCAL competition.

Trailing 41-36 with 3:20 showing on the clock in the final period, the Crawford-led Highlanders came storming back as the crafty backcourt operator hit eight of his team's last 11 points in the come-from-behind victory.

At 2:57, Perry Monroe hit his only point, a toss from the foul line, cutting the margin to 41-37. Ken Bush made the first end of a one-and-one situation, giving the Ganders the lead, 42-39 with 51 seconds showing.

Both teams traded the ball back and fourth with Crawford coming up with a steal. He threaded his way through the defenders and hit a 15-foot jumper, to bring the score to 42-41 with 18 seconds.

Play of the Game

Then came the play of the game. With ten seconds showing, Rondout flipped the ball in bounds. It struck the hands of one of the Highlanders and headed out of bounds. Hardy Marx dove after it, going full tilt and caught it just before it rolled over the line.

Marx hit it just hard enough as it rolled to the top of the key where Crawford scooped it up and, all in one motion, went high into the air to sink the 20-footer, giving Highland the winning margin.

The Ganders called timeout with six seconds left and tried to set up a play. But, it went for naught as Bruce Burr's jump shot at the buzzer rolled off the rim.

Most observers felt that this would be a tight one, but never figured on this as the two clubs battled to an 11-11 tie in the first period, with Highland taking a 24-23 edge to the locker room at halftime.

Take 6 Point Lead

The Ganders, led by their scoring star Pete Koola, took a six point lead as "Pistol Pete" hit for six straight markers and Jim Chick added five. However, the visitors never lost their "cool" and kept the pressure on the home side.

Crawford, coming off a leg injury that figured to keep him sidelined for the rest of the season, played as though nothing bothered him at all as he hit six-for-eight from the field and three for four from the charity stripe. Time and again, he and Marx, who has to be the most underrated ball player in the circuit, broke through the all-court press applied by the Ganders.

Koola was high for the game with 16. Crawford was the top scorer for Highland with 15, eight coming in the last period. Winning Coach Dick Becker was speechless after the tilt. "We're just very happy to win. When you beat a team like Rondout, you have to be lucky."

Gander Coach John "Chick" Meehan felt his team had just gone cold at the wrong time. "We blew it," he said. "Our foul shooting in key situations hurt us and we were only one for 10 in the last quarter," he concluded.

Maroon Routs Raiders

KINGSTON

Kingston High School's basketball team moved into a tie for second place in the DUSO, with an impressive 71-49 win over the Red Raiders of Port Jervis Friday night before 350 spectators at the field house.

It was a complete turnaround from the first meeting between the two clubs at Port Jervis (Port won that one 80-61).

"We worked like demons all week in practice and it paid off for us," said the Maroons coach Mike Rienzo. "At the beginning of the season, I sat down and went over the schedule and felt we had a chance to end up in second place, added Rienzo. "The boys are coming around in fine shape. They are gaining valuable experience, and now that we have won a few games, I'm confident they can give anybody a ball game," said Rienzo.

Johnson Stars

Rocky Johnson only scored 9 points for the Maroons, but took down a game high of 19 rebounds, blocked 3 shots and added 7 assists. Johnson although not the tallest man on the court showed ability to box and leap well for the ball.

Jim Carroll led the Kingston scoring with 21 points. Carroll entered the ball game in place of Bob Terwilliger with six minutes left in the second quarter and hit right away on a 3 point play to give the Maroons a 17-13 lead. Carroll added only two points in the third quarter, but hit on 8 out of 8 attempts from (close-in) in the final period, for 16 of the 28 fourth quarter Maroon points.

Defense Tightens

It was anybody's ball game at halftime as the Maroons led 29-25, after trailing 25-24 with 35 seconds left in the half. Emilio Platts hit on a field goal and a free throw and Johnson added two free throws just before the half ended to give Kingston the lead for good.

Pete Boyd guarded Rick Saul so close in the third quarter that Saul must have thought Boyd was wearing his sneakers. Saul was able to score only one of Port's two field goals in that quarter and it didn't come until seven and one-half minutes had elapsed. By that time Kingston had built up a 43-30 lead. Saul finished the game with 24 points.

Kingston players were contesting every shot taken by Port Jervis in that third period and held them scoreless at one point, for a 51/2 minute stretch. The fourth quarter saw both sides run and shoot as the sides in that quarter show. The Kingston Junior Varsity won 91-31 over the Junior Raiders.

Kingston now in a tie for second with Middletown and Port Jervis with 3 and 3 records trails Newburgh Free Academy 5-0. Monticello is in last place with a 1 and 6 record. Kingston travels to Albany High for a non-league game Tuesday, Feb. 16. The Maroons have a 4-9 overall record. Kingston made 26 of 52 for 50 per cent while Port Jervis made 20 of 50 for 40 per cent from the field.

John Lotz Takes Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—John Lotz, a journeyman golfer pro from Hayward, Calif., blazed his way into a one-stroke lead at the halfway point in the 72-hole $100,000 Tucson Open by shooting an eight-under-par 64, just one shot off the course record.

With his first round 69, Lotz, 28, had a 36-hole total of 133, 11 under par for the Tucson National Golf Club course. Par is 36-72 for 18 holes.

Lotz would do well not to look back going into today's third round or he may lose his chance for the $20,000 first prize after Sunday's final round.

A stroke behind him were two tough money players, Bob Murphy and defending champion Lee Trevino with identical rounds of 66-68-134.

Steve Reid, 33-year-old tour regular from St. Louis, Mo., held third with 69-67-136. In at 137 were Chuck Courtney, Tommy Jacobs and Homero Blancas. The 138 group included Bob Lunn, Deane Beman, Fred Marti and Phil Rodgers. Billy Casper, who was right up there in second place with a 67 in the first round, slipped to par 72 and had 139.

The field was cut to the low 70 and ties at the halfway mark, and 74 players made it including one amateur, Dr. Ed Updegraff, perennial king of Arizona's Simon Pure set at 71-69-140. The cutoff mark was a rather low one; an even par 144 was required to hang around for the last two rounds.

Lotz, who has never won a major PGA tournament and was No. 90 on the money list last year with a mere $18,000, could have matched Don January's course record 63 but a long putt for a birdie on the 13th green stopped about two inches short.

He got a new putter last week and it was working well in his 64 round. His nine birdies included a pair of 15-footers and a 25-footer and a 30-footer. Appearing almost bewildered, Lotz said, "I don't know why but I've been playing better."

His younger brother, Dick, had no such luck. Dick bowed out of the tournament with 76-70-146. Also eliminated with totals of 146 were Terry Dill and Peter Townsend, who often manage to get a piece of the purse.

Trevino was unusually consistent. He had birdie fours on the four par five holes and parred all the others.

Geneseo Defeats The Hawks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Ithaca College upset highly rated Buffalo State, 78-69, Friday night, in one of eight games involving Upstate New York college basketball teams. Cornell dropped Harvard, 73-65, and St. Lawrence downed RPI, 82-74.

Other action saw Upstate College triumph over Cornell, 76-63; Cortland over Fredonia, 81-54; and Geneseo walloped New Paltz, 82-60.

Paul Veronese led five Ithaca players with double figures. He had 24 points. His consecutive steals turned into conversions put Ithaca ahead, Buffalo State at 14-3 had been the number one small college team in the state going into the game.

Ithaca is now 4-1. Cornell pulled away from a 33-33 halftime tie with Harvard largely on the help of 12 points in eight minutes from Bill Schwarzkopf. He scored 22 in all and had 11 rebounds. High man for Harvard was Brian Newmark with 17 points.

Cortland led from the start against Fredonia. Cortland held a halftime margin of 37-22. Earl Rogers was high with 23 for Cortland. Amos Goodwin led the losers with 17.

Geneseo held New Paltz without a field goal for more than nine minutes of the second half to break away from a 35-31 halftime score. Tim Sisson led Geneseo with 22 points. Jim Leonardo's 17 made him high for New Paltz.

McLain Is Meeting With Authorities

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain, the Detroit Tiger pitcher who won 55 games during the last two baseball seasons, has met with federal attorneys to cooperate on a national gambling investigation, an associate of McLain's said Friday night.

McLain has not done anything illegal, but the federal investigation deals with persons McLain may have known, said Ed Demetrak, who has been a McLain cohort in business enterprises for the past 3½ years.

McLain could not be immediately reached for comment. The Detroit Free Press said he has been investigated concerning possible involvement in gambling and association with gamblers.

Earlier Friday, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said in a statement at New York that "certain of the field activities" of McLain in 1967 are being reviewed by the office.

Two Meet Kuhn did not say what activities. However, the baseball commissioner noted there was "no indication that these activities in any way involved the playing or outcome of baseball games."

Kuhn met with McLain and the 25-year-old pitcher's attorney Friday. A federal grand jury has been meeting secretly in Detroit recently on what federal officials say is a nationwide gambling probe which may involve known sports figures.

Fifteen persons have been arrested and charged with violating interstate gambling laws, but charges against three of them were dismissed by a Detroit federal judge this week on recommendation of government attorneys.

U.S. District Atty. James Brickley of Detroit declined comment on whether McLain has been investigated.

However, Demetrak said that McLain was questioned once within the last week by James Ritchie, who heads a U.S. attorney general's task force on organized crime. The task force has been concentrating on the gambling quiz.

Ritchie could not be reached immediately for comment. After Kuhn's statement, it was learned that McLain had not been fined or suspended. Kuhn said he would make another statement when the facts are evaluated.

Estimates $200,000 McLain estimates he earns $200,000 a year from baseball and outside activities, including performing as an organist, but he has had several financial difficulties lately.

To cure his financial woes, McLain has hired International Management Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio, which has handled finances for other athletes such as golfers Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus and Baltimore baseball great Brooks Robinson.

McLain said in an interview at Lakeland, Fla., earlier this week where the Tigers are setting up their spring training camp, that "I extended myself on business deals and used some bad judgment."

He said he hopes that the International Management Inc., headed by Cleveland attorney Mark McCormack would clear up the problems.

On Friday, the Detroit Bank & Trust Co. confirmed reports McLain's checks are being sent to them by the Tigers to pay the $13,000 remaining of a loan.

A court suit was filed about a week ago to evict McLain and his family from their home in suburban Detroit. The suit contended he has not paid $2,450 in rent owed.

McLain said the financial plight was caused by allowing his personal obligations to be taken care of "by another person and he didn't take care of them."

The Internal Revenue Service placed a tax lien recently against McLain's property in Oakland County, Mich., for $9,460.

None of those arrested by federal agents were sports figures. Federal attorneys also have not made publicly known who has appeared before the grand jury.

However, Brickley said he expects some indictments this month. He said any initial indictments may concern those arrested.

MIAMI (AP) — Hirsch Jacobs, who went from pigeon racing to the pinnacle of horse racing, died Friday and it caused tears among several of the little giants in the sport.

"He was a great man and always stuck by his commitments," said 101-pound Jorge Velasquez, leading money winner among jockeys in 1969. "He was a man of his word."

Hirsch, 65, was a trainer of thoroughbred champions. He saddled during a 40-year career 3,596 winners who earned over $15 million.

"Old Mr. Jacobs was a credit to the business," said Sylvester Veitch, who trains for the George Widener Stables. "A real credit to the business."

Hirsch died at the Miami Heart Institute, about 10 miles from Hialeah race track. His death at 12:15 p.m. was an hour before post time for Friday's first race.

Hirsch started his yearn for speed at age 12, racing pigeons in his native New York. Styria was one of the great thoroughbred "steals" accomplished by the keen judge of horseflesh. Jacobs bought the non-winner for $1,500 and Styria went on to win $914,485.

Jacobs was born April 8, 1904, and saddled his first winner, Reveillon, at the old Pompano Beach Fla., track in 1926. His 3,000th victory came with Blue FCA Contractors, 37 26 50 Water, which was owned by Van Etten's 33 30 45 Mrs. Jacobs, at Aqueduct in Frank's Hunt. Lodge 32 31 43 New York April 1, 1960. Saug. Bruins Bomb State

(By United Press International) The UCLA Bruins, cruising Long Beach State overcame No. 5 New Mexico State vs. Air Force, No. 6 North Carolina vs. Clemson, No. 7 Oregon State vs. Jacksonville vs. Loyola (La.), No. 8 North Carolina vs. Georgia Tech and No. 9 Penn State vs. Brown.

In addition to UCLA, several other top teams were seeing action today. Among the pairings are No. 2 South Carolina vs. Duke, No. 3 Kentucky vs. Florida, No. 4 St. Louis vs. Wake Forest.

Like Washington State, the Cougars carried UCLA all the way before losing a 72-70 verdict last Monday night. Forward Sidney Wicks scored 17 points in the first half Friday night to give UCLA a 44-30 halftime edge over Washington State, and UCLA breezed to a 95-61 victory. The top-ranked Bruins seek to raise their season mark to 20-0 today in their match with Washington.

With one exception, other members of the nation's top 20 college teams also won. Sixth-ranked North Carolina State, which fell to eighth-ranked North Carolina earlier in the week, fell Friday to Georgia Tech 89-77. In the second game of a doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C., North Carolina beat Clemson 110-66.

Seventh-ranked Jacksonville dominated the backboards with its towering height and smashed Oklahoma City University 103-83, with Artis Gilmore scoring 27 points. Ninth-ranked Pennsylvania posted its 20th victory in 21 games by edging Yale 70-62. Corky Calhoun, a sophomore, scored 19 points and pulled down 21 rebounds for Penn.

In other games, Mississippi nipped Mississippi State 57-55. Pittsburgh outscored Syracuse 127-108, Columbia beat Dartmouth 72-58, Southern California 72-58, Southern California 72-58.

Rangers Set Record

OAKLAND (AP) — Even when they lose, the New York Rangers win themselves honors in the National Hockey League record book.

Take Friday night's 4-2 defeat at the hands of the Oakland Seals. It goes into history as the 11th consecutive game the Rangers avoided a shutout—tying their own previous NHL record of 1940-42.

But Ranger defenseman Jim Neilson suffered torn knee ligaments during a pileup Friday night and apparently will be lost for the season.

Dave Seaton's 25th goal of the season got the Rangers off to a 1-0 lead in the second period, but Seals defenseman Dick Mattiussi tied it up in the third period when he slapped a long one past goalie Ed Giacomin at 2:28.

A minute later Orland Kurtenbach's second goal of the year put the Rangers back in the lead.

Then the Seals went on the streak that gave them their fourth win in their last five games.

Defenseman Harry Howell made the score 2-2 with a long slap shot. Center Mike Laughton then banked one off Giacomin's shoulder from behind the net, and Earl Ingarfield scored the Seals' fourth tally into a undefeated net.

Dear Abby

Raise Kin With Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for many years, and must admit that my husband and I have found it quite informative as well as amusing at times.

Our problem is that we have children growing up who can read, and your column is the first thing they go for in the newspaper.

Abby, I don't mean to be a crank, but I do wish you would answer some of those letters personally instead of putting them in the paper. I refer to letters from 70-year-old women who are still interested in sex, letters about men who go for men, and also situations involving girls who are pregnant and unmarried. (I'm sure you know what I mean.)

I am aware that your correspondents do not always sign their names and addresses, but surely you must receive plenty of other letters that are not quite so objectionable to fill your space. Will you please give it some thought?

ONE MOTHER'S OPINION
DEAR ONE: Perhaps the best way to answer your letter is by printing another mother's opinion:

DEAR ABBY: You may not know it, but your column has helped us to raise our children. We're not the kind of parents who could take our children into a room, close the door and tell them "the facts of life." Over the years just about everything we've wanted to discuss with our children has come up in your column. V.D., unwed mothers, child molesting, homosexuality, and believe it or not, I was wondering how to tell our 4-year-old that my parents were getting divorced when an answer in your column said it so much better than I ever could have. So, thanks a heap, Abby Love Ya.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on visits with relatives. Many ideas are proposed. Maintain sense of humor. Be selective. Do not accept second best; insist on quality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money sector of your solar chart is activated. You can add to possessions. Stress originality, independence. Welcome ideas, challenges. You look like a winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle is high; take initiative. Not wise to wait for others. Set your own pace; respond to your own rhythm. Your hunches pay off; you perceive what is about to occur.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't be surprised if one close to you acts in secretive manner. Key is to be versatile. Have alternative methods at hand. Expand—look to future and plan ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on how to best fulfill desires. One key is willingness to tear down the old and rebuild. Many today try to convince you that tradition should not be violated. Perhaps.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can obtain needed material backing. Some changes, revisions are necessary. But important persons back your positions. Realize this and act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be going places—in positive manner. You no longer are emotionally confined. Ability to express love restores family harmony. Give and you also will receive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Investments, financial opportunities are discussed. Overcome temptation to "fall for" pie-in-sky scheme. Stick to principles—play by the rules.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lie low; play waiting game. Give attention to mate, partner. Consideration of permanent relationship is accented. Realize that no man is an island.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Catch up on some basic chores. Then also receive spiritual enlightenment. Keep mind and heart open; practice Golden Rule. Spotlight on general health and relations with associates.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good lunar aspect today coincides with chance to narrow generation gap. Express your views—but also be willing to accept assertions, beliefs put forth by young persons.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you soon will be confronted with challenge which demands realistic attitude.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

FEBRUARY 16, 1970

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Home affairs dominate. One you depend upon could act in erratic manner. Key is to be patient. Do something which demonstrates that you not only care, but you also love.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Apply light touch. You gain most through diplomatic approach. Applies especially when dealing with relatives. Many promises are made but few are honored. Act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You exhibit tendency to be extravagant. Provide room for logic as well as impulse. You can have fun without overextending finances. But quality, but keep within budget.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What blocked you or acted as obstacle could suddenly be removed. Be ready to expand operations. There is no need to be tied to tradition.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Element of confusion exists. One you thought was "here to stay" could embark on journey. Keep communication lines open—take nothing for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finances may not be steady, but potential is great. Realize this and be encouraged. A change works to your benefit. A GEMINI individual could provide inspiration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick to facts—perform duties, accept overtime assignment. You have excellent opportunity to realize substantial gains. Concentrate on elevating personal position.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Important to be discreet. Some items are best kept to yourself. Many today appear to act in suspicious manner. This is mainly because they are uncertain. Don't cast first stone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A friend could surprise with financial statement. General indications are that you make gains. But let others set pace. You will emerge on top.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Erratic actions by those who should know better are featured. Don't compound error. Remain calm. Finish important project. Refuse to be dissuaded by foolish rumors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some of your ideas are subject to revision. Don't be chained by preconceived notions. Observe and learn. Your judgment is fine if you obtain fresh viewpoint.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotions are intense. You can achieve goal if you are clear in expressing desires, needs. Don't make mistake of trying to overwhelm people. Facts will speak for themselves.

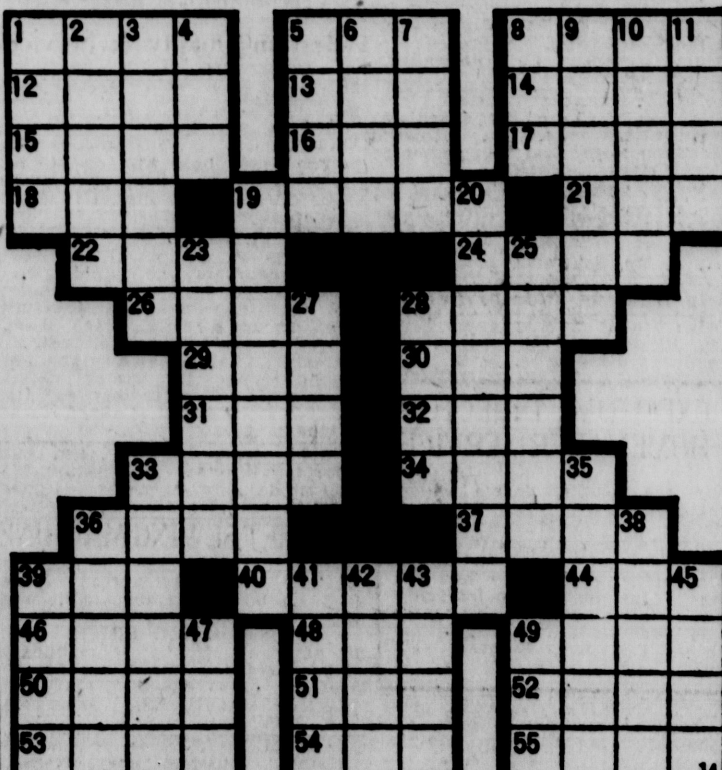

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, spiritual. You are going to make some of your goals become realities. Your views are advanced and you are due to meet individual worthy of your aspirations.

Two Views of Uptown Urban Renewal

"WHO WOULD have thought we'd be out of there in 45 minutes," marveled one city official after Monday night's public hearing on Basement Realty at city hall.

The predicted heated confrontations concerning Basement Realty's proposal to buy the Goodyear property from the urban renewal agency failed to come off. Attendance wasn't up to predictions either. Some 30 persons were there, very few of them disinterested parties.

All the principals attended — Chuck Roach, head of Basement; his two partners, Bill Ryan and Vince Bradley. Well not quite all the principals. Abel Garraghan, the fourth partner didn't make it. It was later explained to us that Abel has apparently inherited his father's thin skin and might have blown his cool had things got hot.

Things didn't get hot although Harry Thayer made an impassioned plea against the undertaking. Thayer seems to be very good at making impassioned pleas against just about everything.

Thayer did present an interesting, if not original argument against the project. He apparently did some research over at the county clerk's office on land sales in the area and offered them as a comparison. Jim Tyrrell, the GOP mayoral hopeful, did the same thing last year on the same project. Thayer's point was that the agency, by selling the land for "only" $24,000 to Basement, was driving down property values in the area to the future detriment to the adjoining businessmen and eventually to all of us.

Thayer mentioned figures like $50,000 paid for the Telephone Company property on Converse Street and $25,000 for the Burroughs property in the same area.

The figures may be valid but the argument doesn't make it. Assessments are made up of more than just land values, as any taxpayer can tell you.

As we recall, Roach said his firm was planning to construct a $135,000 service center on that property. That should bring the total assessment up to about $180,000. We wonder how many properties in the North Front-Wall Street area are worth $180,000.

Thayer was correct in stating that the agency sold (or will sell) the Goodyear property to Basement at "cut rate prices." The agency paid Goodyear $33,000 for the property.

There are two points to consider here. The urban renewal agency is not in business to make a profit on its land transactions. On the other hand, urban renewal is not in the business of giving its land away, either.

Detailed appraisals are made of each property to be acquired by the local office which are then checked by Federal officials.

There is a markdown and for reasons that most of us who have had at least a passing interest in urban renewal, Kingston style, could understand. For lack of better words, the agency calls it "the pain in the neck factor." Simply put it means that dealing with urban renewal is like fighting city hall.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Freeman City Hall Reporter

Time is money and it takes a great deal of time to do business with the urban renewal agency. The "pain in the neck factor" was worth 30 per cent off the price in the Basement Realty deal. Under those conditions, $24,000 was just about the right price.

Of course, the gossip up and down North Front Street, Wall Street, Main Street and various bars and hot dog stands therein, didn't center around the price of the land. It centered around Abel Garraghan's involvement in the deal.

It was easy to imagine that Abel, with his father, Raymond, sitting in the mayor's chair, pulled some kind of sneaky, underhanded deal.

The phrase is "conflict of interests" which sounds impressive but is rather difficult to establish.

For the record, urban renewal lawyers said that there was no conflict with Abel as a partner in the Basement deal and his father the mayor as chief executive of the city.

As we said, conflict of interest is tough to establish.

Take this case from Arthur Levitt, the state comptroller. According to a news release put out last week by Levitt's office, the following case came before the Department for an opinion.

It seems that a certain county bought its insurance from a corporation owned by the county chairman of the political party to which a majority of the county board of supervisors belonged.

Conflict of interest?

Not so, said Levitt. "There's no conflict under the law... since the county chairman isn't a county employee."

We're not making a case for Basement Realty. We've heard all the rumors. But no one, as yet, has backed up any bar room gossip with solid proof.

Which brings us to the Carpio versus Kingston Urban Renewal case now underway before Referee Joseph D. Saccaman.

Joe Hill, Vince Carpio's lawyer, is attempting to prove that Murphy Street (where Carpio lives) and Taylor Street were included in the uptown plan solely to make the overall plan acceptable to the federal government and its seven million dollars.

He is saying that if Murphy and Taylor Streets were included for that reason their inclusion was arbitrary and that the plan is illegal.

It's a reasonable argument and any number of people will tell you that that's just what happened. But proving it is quite another thing.

Hill is basing his contention on the fact that there must have been two maps, one showing only the uptown business district that was rejected by the federal government and another one showing Murphy street included in an accepted plan.

To date, there is no trace of any original map showing the uptown business district in itself. Testimony indicates that changes were made to satisfy the feds but no one has categorically stated that two plans existed.

There have been a number of people subpoenaed, none of whom have given really definite answers to the questions asked.

Jim Connors, the urban renewal director who has been here 14 months, was called. Connors has been asked direct questions like "what is the criteria for including buildings in an urban renewal area." Connors, who knows the book, gives an answer from the manual. It is a general answer. He doesn't know why certain properties were included in the urban renewal plan nine years ago. He wasn't there.

Alexander Yosman is called. He probably knows the answers but he was only an "advisor." He didn't make the decisions. So they didn't get too much from Yosman.

They even called city clerk Louis DeCicco with his city records.

Louie didn't know anything about what happened nine years ago, either. He'd only been the city clerk since Feb. 1 of this year.

We got the impression that no matter whom Hill called to the stand he would draw a blank. One gets a mental picture of the classic cartoon of the Tweed Ring with everyone pointing to the guy next to him.

We don't know how Hill is going to make out in this case. That's up to the referee, Joe Saccaman. One thing is certain. If Hill is basing his case on solid proof on how the uptown plan came to be he's in serious trouble. That proof went up in the smoke of backroom meetings nine years ago.

Send U.N. Truce Team to Mideast

By United Press International
Egyptian artillery bombarded the Israeli-occupied Sinai Peninsula at the southern end of the Suez Canal overnight, a Cairo military spokesman said today. The United Nations summoned its truce supervisor for talks on efforts to restore the faltering cease-fire in the Middle East.

Egyptian guns surrounding Suez City and Port Tewfik pounded Israeli installations on the opposite bank of the canal for several hours, an Egyptian spokesman said.

He said the Arab gunners set an ammunition dump on fire and that flames were visible in Suez City.

Lt. Gen. Odd Bull, chief of the 100-man United Nations truce supervision group on the Suez Canal flew to New York for talks with U.N. Secretary General Thant. He was called in after the Soviet Union, France and Britain failed to agree to an American proposal that the Big Four nations take steps to reestablish the cease-fire.

In Amman, a three-day religious holiday opened today with talks still in progress between the government of King Hussein and Palestinian guerrillas who clashed with government forces for two days.

A truce reached late Thursday between the government and 10 guerrilla organizations ended the sporadic violence which claimed 19 lives on both sides. The fighting broke out after Hussein's government demanded enforcement of bans against carrying, storing and firing arms. The guerrillas objected.

In Amman, a 36-year-old surgeon who now heads an Arab guerrilla group said today his men attacked an Israeli El Al Airlines bus at Munich Airport Tuesday in hopes of kidnapping Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Dayan's son was at the airport and escaped injury. But the defense minister was in Israel.

One man was killed and 11 injured in the series of grenade explosions at Munich's Riem Airport.

Meanwhile in Cairo, hundreds of thousands of Egyptians hailed President Gamal Abdel Nasser at a rally Friday, but the mood in Cairo seemed calm despite the Israeli air raid that killed 70 factory workers.

Although police said half a million participated in the demonstration, much of Cairo resembled a Western city enjoying a Sunday afternoon because Friday in most Moslem countries is the sabbath.

Traffic was light, hundreds strolled along the sunny banks of the Nile while others window shopped, crowded into cinemas or lolled at sidewalk cafes.

There was talk, of course, of the Israeli attack on the metal factory 17 miles north of the downtown area Thursday. Officials said the attack resulted in the heaviest toll of civilian casualties since the 1967 war.

One prominent Egyptian attorney speculated on the future, then hurried off to a dinner party, demonstrating the streak of fatalism in Egyptians which leads them to accept almost any calamity with equanimity.

The holiday made it difficult to assess the mood of the people, but one striking exception was the mass outpouring at noon around the 1,000-year-old Azhar Mosque near Cairo's bazaar quarter.

Oil Spreads Over Florida Coast

OIL-COVERED DUCK—A duck covered with oil lies helplessly on the shores of Tampa Bay after an oil tanker spilled its cargo. The heavy oil was to be used at an electrical power generator station in St. Petersburg. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Oil from an 18-square-mile slick that a grounded tanker dumped in Old Tampa Bay spread today onto islands that are the homes of sea birds and shellfish.

Tides and winds held the mass of sludge away from Florida's tourist beaches and waterfront homes, however, while a skimmer barge worked to sweep the oil up and crews with floating plastic booms worked to contain it.

On the Canadian coast, a similar tanker mishap threatened a fish plant.

Off Louisiana, fear of shoreline pollution from an oil well burning out of control eased.

Cleanup crews battled through the night to clean up the Florida slick in the bay which separates Tampa and St. Petersburg.

But, Coast Guard Lt. (j.g.) Robert Leggat said "They have had some oil going ashore on the Weedon Island area which is basically an undeveloped area consisting mainly of mangrove swamps and small islands."

Lt. R. C. Guess of the Florida Marine Resources Department said, "There's a lot of birds and shellfish in there, and they can be hurt very bad by an oil slick."

The barge and boom crews hoped to contain the sludge long enough to ready detergents that would break the oil into particles and send it to the bay bottom.

But the oil was killing waterfowl Friday, a few hours after a gash in the side of a Greek tanker spilled it into Old Tampa Bay.

Ducks, pelicans and other sea birds landed on the oil-covered water then flopped about frantically trying to fly away. Some didn't make it and after a few hours they slipped beneath the surface.

The captain of the tanker Delian Apollon was ordered arrested Friday on charges of creating an industrial hazard. The 619-foot ship struck the edge of a ship channel in the bay about two miles from the dock where it was to discharge oil to fire boilers in an electrical generating plant. A rupture in the hull released the oil.

Officials did not know immediately how much oil was lost.

The ship was refloated about an hour later and moved to berth where pumps sucked up the rest of the ship's cargo.

Last Wednesday, the Delian Apollon dumped about 4,000 gallons of oil into the water at Port Everglades on Florida's east coast near Fort Lauderdale. An unexpected list allowed the oil to flow from an uncovered tank, a ship's officer said.

A tanker grounded at the entrance to Nova Scotia's Cheabucd Bay on the Canadian coast fouled 40 miles of shoreline 10 days ago, but mopping-up operations continued. The 11,379-ton Liberian tanker Arrow broke apart after grounding.

Fires were set to burn thick patches of oil gathered in coves and tidal pools along the rocky shoreline.

In the Gulf of Mexico off Louisiana, the Coast Guard reported that light traces of oil disappeared near an oil rig burning out of control since Tuesday morning.

An oil slick two miles long and 50 yards wide reportedly dissipated while still about 12 miles from the nearest land and 30 miles from Gulf beaches. The rig of Venice, La., is owned by Chevron Oil Co.

Study Site Work Bond For Highland School

By SHANE CROSBY

HIGHLAND
The clerk of the Highland Central School's Board of Education said Friday that a performance bond from the Rebena Construction to cover site work on the proposed new elementary school has been received and is being "checked on" by the board's attorney.

Robert Demerest said the bond acceptance or rejection would be the next step in the legal action regarding the new school's development, and would be up to the board of education after hearing from the board's attorney, Stewart Schantz.

Work on the proposed school had been delayed by court action following charges of conflict of interest in the awarding of the site work contract to the Rebena firm, owned by a son of a board of education member. The state supreme court recently ruled that no conflict was seen in awarding of the contract to Raymond Constantino, son of Joseph Constantino, of the board.

Sealed bids on general construction and other work on the new school are scheduled to be opened by the district on March 3 at 2 p.m. in the business office. The estimated cost of the new school has been placed at $2.5-million.

No date for the start of site work has been offered by the school officials, who say work can not begin until weather and legal matters permit.

HUDSON RIVER SLOOPS DOT CITY OF TROY harbor in this painting and engraving by William J. Bennett. Artist recreated the scene in 1838 from the West bank of the Hudson, in front of the U.S. Arsenal. It is one of more than 30 authentic 19th century prints used to illustrate the new book, "Hudson River Sloops," just issued by the Sloop Restoration group.

History of This Valley Written on Sails

In the more than two years we've toiled for TEMPO, we've written reviews (sometimes glowing) of book after book we thought would bring reader enjoyment. Occasionally, we blushed at the prices of some—for even in these inflated times—$50, $30, $12.50 and $6.95 seemed out of line for even avid lovers of literature.

Today we're convinced more than one publisher is basking beneath the Bermuda sun at readers' expense. For across our desk has come a book that is sheer delight and a thing of beauty. It is a book for all seasons for every man . . . a book to be cherished for a lifetime . . . and all its myriad wonders are offered for a not-to-be-believed $1.25.

True, it is a softcover edition, but this detracts not one whit from its desirability. For between its covers, we journey again to Antony's Nose, Pokepsy, Kenderhook, Sopas, and Tapan See — once the right names and spellings for Hudson River towns and places. All of us who live here today know that civilization has changed that. But few of us remember how the beginnings of the industrialization and urbanization of the Hudson Valley came from the waters of the river and the hundreds of majestic Hudson River sloops that sailed them with white sails bobbing.

Colorful Era

Now, thanks to Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc. (chaired by folksinger Pete Seeger), we can relive those days before steam-driven vessels touched these shores. The Sloop group has just published "Hudson River Sloops," brand new and as inexpensive as a bottle of St. Croix rum in the days when sloops supplied our shores with such. Needless to say, the book covers the early growth of the Hudson River and the role of the sloops in its development; tells its story of early colonization colorfully and well. Put together by a hard-working volunteer committee, it called for long hours of research in duty libraries. What has emerged is a delight to the eye, for the book is illustrated with more than 30 authentic prints of the 19th century, along with excerpts from the 1800 Journal of John Maude, an Englishman who sailed the length of the Hudson aboard sloops. Maude's observations and experiences give us unusual and humorous insights into our past history.

Some of the illustrations are well worth framing and, at this price, we're buying two: one to keep on our library shelf and another to cut up and put behind glass on our wall.

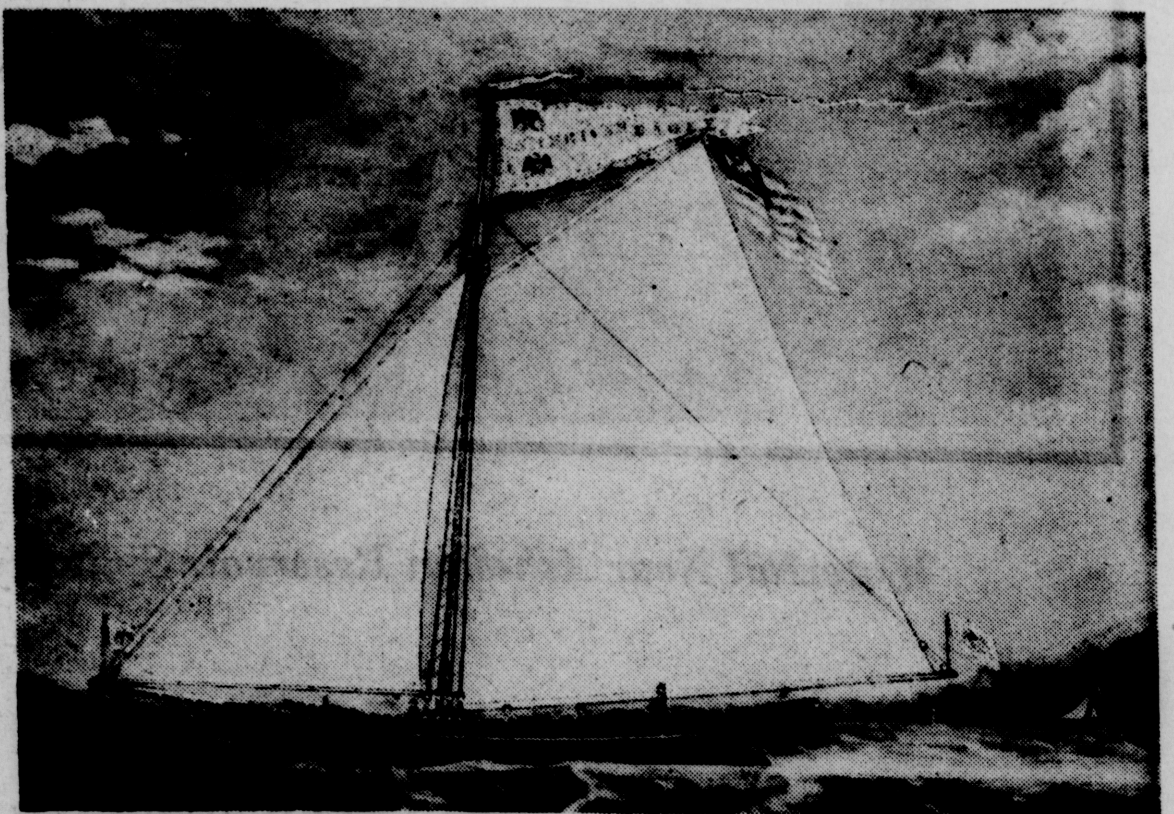

There's a colorful glossary of Hudson River sailing terms (Albany Beef, Hard a lee, Holystone, Hold her off, Moon-glade, Warragut), and a fascinating bibliography for those who'd like to explore further the rich history of our Valley.

Gave Us Clearwater

Tempo readers should know without having to be reminded that the same (Continued on Page 27)

OIL PAINTING of the Sloop "American Eagle" is thought to be the work of artist James Bard. It is another of the intriguing illustrations from out of the past that makes "Hudson River Sloops" a book to be cherished.

Pioneer Wood Carver of Fox Hollow

17—THE DAILY FREEMAN, FEBRUARY 14, 1970

INTEREST IN THE ART of Intarsia — producing decorative designs by inlaying wood in a background of wood — impelled Fred Decker of Fox Hollow to produce this beautiful and intricate tray. Painsstaking work on the piece won for its creator a first prize in competition with other such works.

MORE THAN 150 BLOCKS of wood were used by Fred Decker to create this perfect replica of a miniature church. Complete in every detail, the church even boasts people inside, all listening attentively to the sermon.

FRAMED WOOD "PAINTING" is one of several that currently decorate the walls of the Decker home. In this one tulips predominate. In others, birds are the subject, and artist Decker says wood carving has proved to be a craft particularly suited to the portrayal of birds . . . as, for example, the best decoys.

In the same way that a man on a golf course might select a club for getting out of a sand trap or a woman in a kitchen might ponder which knife to use, Fred Decker studies the assortment of carving tools spread out on a work-bench before him. Then, nine times out of 10, he picks up his jack knife and begins to carve expertly on a piece of wood.

Decker, who says his talent at carving is "just something that comes natural," never had any need for instruction in this one-time pioneer art. So intricate are his pieces that they more than deserve the title of "carvings." But Decker minimizes his versatility and accomplishments by saying simply, "I've been whittling for quite awhile. It started as a hobby and that's about all it is now."

But anyone who has visited his home in the Fox Hollow section of Phoenicia (somewhat appropriately across from The Log Cabin) would be more inclined to think of his work as art. So would those who have seen his wide variety of wood creations on display, including his blue-ribbon winning trays and lamps.

Nothing Difficult

For innumerable hours over the years, he has whittled and carved away at his work-bench in the family garage. Here he does the rough work; usually performs the finishing work inside the house. He finds inlaid work "a little more tedious," but no more difficult than other methods working with wood.

The Phoenicia carver who works with the simplest of tools and the oldest of materials, says he "uses most any kind of wood" for his carvings; prefers butternut although he often resorts to red cedar. During high water times, he roams the Cats-

DECKER HOUSE IN PHOENICIA abounds with examples of its owner's work. Prodigious output has taken over shelves, book cases, tables and corners. Among his favorite subjects, as displayed on these shelves, are birds and Indians.

MRS. DECKER, TOO, is a versatile craftsman. Here she displays some of her hand-made pillows and carefully mounted and framed fans from her collection.

Of Hearts and Flowers Then and Now

Roses are red, violets are blue, hot pink is nice, but skip the goo.
In other words, new colors and cooler sentiments are edging their way onto valentines.
Red still is dandy, but a quicker way to a modern maid's heart may be through a starkly modern valentine colored persimmon, avocado, lemon, or hot pink.

Sticky verses comparing one's love to a carnation or a nightingale are out of place on new cards. One 1970 valentine says on the outside, "Happy Valentine's Day, You Big Rat." Inside it reads, "Knew you wouldn't go for no mushy poem."

Love Sweeps Country

Greeting card makers estimate that more than a half-billion valentines will be sent this year, the National Geographic Society tells Tempo. In spite of the modern trend, old-fashioned sentiment predominates.

In fact, the sentiment is so old fashioned that many current valentines are replicas of Victorian greetings. Also popular again are 1910-era cards with pop-up hearts and flowers.

Nobody knows for certain when the custom of giving valentines began. Many historians believe that early Christians instituted the observance to replace the Roman Lupercalia, a mid-February fertility festival laced with all-out revelry.

Scholars can only guess at the identity of the patron saint of romance. The early Christian calendar lists seven saints named Valentine or Valentinus. Two could qualify for the honor.

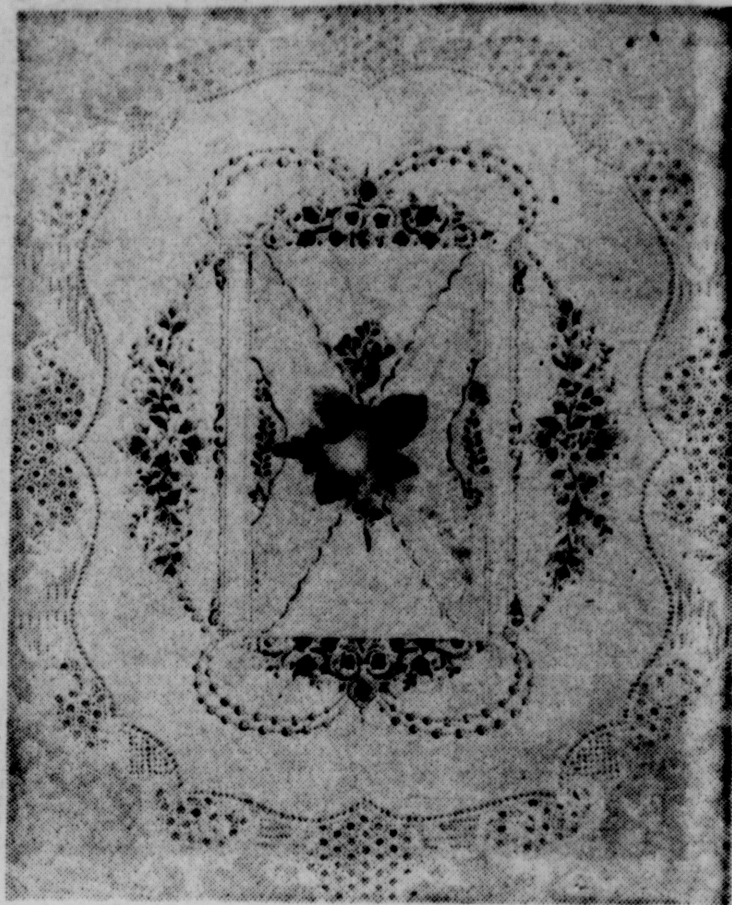

One was Bishop Valentine of Interamna Nahars in central Italy. He reputedly married couples secretly in the third century in defiance of an imperial order that young men should remain single and available for army service. Bishop Valentine was executed—some say—on February 14, 270.

A second candidate was a physician named Valentine, who preached the new religion and faced death rather than renounce it. Legend has it that before his execution he cured his jailer's daughter of blindness and sent her a farewell

ROSES, VIOLETS, CUPIDS were all the rage when an ardent swain sent this old-fashioned valentine to his lady love way back in the Victorian era. And goocyness still predominates today even though mad, mod cards have made inroads.

INTRICATE DESIGN marks this valentine of the 1800's. Delicate and ever so sentimental, its lacy look and muted flowers were accompanied by a hand-written verse inside, composed and penned by the sender.

romantic came up with this thought on an Ulster coffee-house wall: "Eat Paisley Peaches for Lunch—Unicorns Do." Pigeons still coo on the City Hall roof. Boxes of heart-shaped candy are selling like boxes of heart-shaped candy should. Occasionally, passing an area bistro, one can still hear sobbing violins. Girls still stand dreamily in front of bridal shop windows. Boys are still proposing and couples are still getting married. "Romeo and Juliet" is still pulling them in at the box office in reruns. Telegram and night letter Valentines skip across the wires, and more enterprising males put it in concrete, sky-write it or rent a billboard.

As for us, we just found a "Je Suis Aimee" button in a local boutique and a love potion in an area pharmacy. We'd planned to mix our own, but in these avocado-persimmon times, scientific enterprise did it for us.

So, in honor of the executed bishop of 270, of the imprisoned Duke of Orleans and Samuel Pepys' poor wretch of a wife—not to mention the fishmonger's sweetheart, we're pinning on our button, sprinkling a little potion around, and playing our old 78 r.p.m., scratched and chipped copy of Ezio Pinza's "This Nearly Was Mine" from the original "South Pacific" cast album.

And what are you doing for Valentine's Day?

note signed "from your Valentine."

Prisoner of Love

Whatever its origins, the Valentine's Day missive may have first appeared in 1415. Charles, Duke of Orleans, penned one to his lady love from prison.

Samuel Pepys was less sentimental. On February 14, 1667, he grumbled in his diary that he had paid five pounds for his wife's valentine. "I am glad of it," he added, "for it is fit the wretch should have something to content herself with."

The first valentines often were homemade, but the senders cribbed the sentiments from little guidebooks. One, 1820 volume, The New Valentine Writer, suggested this for a fishmonger's sweetheart.

"You're the girl I take delight in./ More than haddock, smelts or whiting./ Flat as a flounder I shall be./ Unless you kindly pity me./ And to my tender heart incline./ Who are alone my valentine."

By 1970, occupational valentines have progressed to an astronaut standing on the moon and saying, "I thank my lucky stars, I do/ For knowing someone nice as you."

Obviously, love still makes the world go round. Even The Beatles insist that "All You Need Is Love."

The Record Kiss

And while it's a good bet that few these days would offer to outdo the six-hour-and-thirty-seven minute nonstop kiss performed by a couple at a Kissathon in Chicago in 1934, there are other indications that this is Love Week.

All around the town we've seen love notes mashed into wet cement and chalked on walls. A couple under one umbrella still spells romance. One

Nobody Can Say 'Stink' Stinks

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you name your record album "Stink" you're just asking people to say that it does. But McKenna Mendelson Mainline named its album "Stink" and then lays down such music that nobody can say it stinks.

McKenna Mendelson Mainline is a white Toronto blues group. Joe Mendelson is lead singer and a guitarist and wrote all 10 songs. He sings in a Joe Williams-type voice, keeping it restrained and controlled, using a pop-sounding voice in a blues way.

This group isn't wailing blues; it rocks along easier. The beat rocks easy too with bass player Mike Harrison really finding a groove on instrumental sections.

Want to Tour

Mike McKenna plays guitar and Tony Nolasco plays drums. McKenna placed an ad in a Toronto paper that he wanted to start a blues group and Mendelson answered; or Mendelson placed the ad and McKenna answered, depending on which publicity release you read. Anyway, the four got together and did a six-month tour of Britain, cut this album for United Artists in London last June and want to tour the U.S.

"Think I'm Losing My Marbles" has a rag flavor. "Don't Give Me Goose for Christmas, Grandma" is funny. "Bad Women" is 12 minutes long, but quality is such that that isn't too long. Some of the lyrics are sexy. Both lyrics and tunes are good and McKenna Mendelson Mainline should soon be mainlined by America.

Records

The Quicksilver Messenger Service has a new album out on Capitol, "Shady Grove," that was eagerly awaited but turns out disappointing.

The group took a year off. Gary Duncan left. Pianist Nicky Hopkins, who has recorded with a lot of top groups, came in. "Shady Grove," the third album for Capitol, was cut. Aside from Hopkins—who, really is superb all the way, and who also wrote, the best track on the LP—the album sounds pretty ordinary, with the instrumentals too loud for the vocals.

Together Again

Since the record, Dino Valenti, who wrote "Get Together," has joined the group and Gary Duncan is back. In person, the group sounds together and the next record should be good again.

Back in the days when Sly Stone was a San Francisco disc jockey, before he put together his friends and relatives in the musical group Sly and the Family Stone, he used to begin his San Francisco radio shows with monologues by Lord Buckley. Most of Sly's listeners thought Lord Buckley was black. And most of the rest of the country had never heard of him.

Now, 10 years after Richard Buckley's death, we're hearing of him. "The Best of Lord Buckley," as recorded in 1951 in Los Angeles, is out on an Elektra album and "Bad Rapping of the Marquis de Sade," from 1960 in Oakland, is out on World Pacific. There probably will be more.

Buckley dug jazz and ghetto language and he told his stories, many of them retellings of Biblical and classical tales, in a combination of those two styles. The punch line of "The Hip Gahn" (that's Gandhi) is told in a spoken version of scat singing.

In Tune With Today

He was ahead of his time but in tune with this time, using slang that his original audience probably didn't entirely understand and now everybody is using, and taking attitudes that people only now are into.

On "Bad Rapping," said to be newly discovered live performances, Buckley does the title monologue, tells about the origin of the chastity belt and retells the ballad of Dan McGrew.

On "The Best Of" album, which lives up to its name, Lord Buckley does the Gettysburg Address, "The Nazz"—Nazarene, Jonah, Antony's funeral oration, Nero and "The Hip Gahn." Some of it sounds irreverent, but that's superficial, only the slang words. It isn't satire or takeoffs for the knowledgeable like Andy Griffith's "What It Was Was Football."

These stories are really reverent, done with love.

ALLISON CROCKETT

Theatre: A Mini-Interview

Only 25, Allison Crockett is considered one of the leading already an old hand in the theatre. A native of Kalamazoo, Mich., she's worked in varied capacities (as actress, stage manager, assistant director, lighting director) since leaving the family hearth behind.

Credit her with summer stock stints at the American Theater Festival, Goldwater, Mich.; three years at the Barn Theater, Augusta, Mich.; and work in the off-Broadway productions of "A View from the Bridge" and "The Mad Show."

The administrative side of her career has seen her serving as production assistant for Lansbury Brothers Productions, New York; Westchester Theater Company's administrative assistant; a member of the executive staff of the Kalamazoo Civic Theater.

Opera on Titanic

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The Santa Fe Opera will give one world premiere next summer, Luciano Berio's first full-length opera, entitled "Opera."

Berio says it was inspired by the sinking of the Titanic. In addition to orchestra and singers, the work will feature members of New York's Open Theater.

The company also will present new productions of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress," Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and Donizetti's "Anna Bolena." It also will do Stravinsky's "Le Rossignol" on a bill with Menotti's "Help! Help! The Globolinks" and Verdi's "La Traviata."

Color It Outasight!

So special has been its appeal that it's been held over for yet another showing. No sooner had "Neighbors: An East River Anthology" taken to the stage in Woodstock last weekend than word began to circulate that here was something quite special. Everyone who saw it wanted to see it again and, as the demand grew, the sponsoring performing Arts of Woodstock persuaded the visiting New York City "Neighbors" troupe to stay on for one more night.

An upcoming commitment at Greenwich Village's Bitter End prohibits the "Neighbors" cast from more than one final performance in Woodstock. Too bad, since "East River Anthology" (modeled after Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology") is so unique, so different, so excellent, it could probably run here for months—just as it has already done as cabaret theater in Manhattan.

See It Tonight

The final art colony production will come off tonight in the Woodstock Town Hall at 8:45 p.m. And when it does, the audience will be treated to multimedia rock theater at its best. Excellent musicians, inspired poetry, moving drama and a touch of comedy have been combined to produce an entertainment experience that draws a strong response.

New York's establishment press was enchanted; called it "total theater." The underground press preferred to dub it "outasight!"

Tempo would add only that "Neighbors" is inspired and "A More Perfect Union" (the musical aggregation involved) one of the most talented groups around. For the Woodstock production, a background of color slides (some of local personalities) in a series of 18 vignettes staged by PAW, and a poetic vignette on Woodstock's Clarence Schmidt, make it additionally appealing.

"Neighbors" with its fascinating array of characters (life's losers speaking from the grave) comes straight from a long run at The 12 Steps off Broadway. And it is fortunate for us that it does.

Cobb as Doctor

Lee J. Cobb will star in "To Confuse an Angel," an original one-hour video drama by Loring Mandel to be aired March 15 by NBC as one of its "Prudential's On Stage" specials. Cobb has the role of a doctor faced with career and personal crises.

Tempo's Pick of the Programs

Tonight, Sat., Feb. 14
SATURDAY MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). Andy Griffith stars in "Angel in My Pocket" as an ex-Marine turned minister in a small Mid-western town. Plot includes a feud, ghosts in the graveyard, and a moonshine still in the church basement.

Sunday, Feb. 15
EXPERIMENT IN TELEVISION (NBC, 5 p.m.). "Dream on Monkey Mountain," filmed in the rugged grandeur and lushness of Trinidad, is an intriguing play that is definitely worth attention.

UNCLE SAM MAGOO (NBC, 6:30 p.m.). The nearsighted Mr. Magoo plays "You Are There" for such events in U.S. history as the first Thanksgiving, the linking of the transcontinental railroad, and the discovery of gold in California.

HE'S YOUR DOG, CHARLIE BROWN (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). Snoopy has become so egotistical, Charlie Brown is forced to send him back to the Daisy Hill Puppy Farm for a refresher course in etiquette.

SUNDAY MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). Comedy, melodrama and a bank heist job are featured in "Dead Heat on a Merry-Go-Round," with James Coburn, Camilla Sparv, Aldo Ray and Robert Webber.

THE ADVOCATES (Channels 13 & 17, 10 p.m.). Question for live debate tonight: "Should the U.S. embargo on trading with Castro Cuba be lifted?"

MOVIE (NBC, 11:30 p.m.). It's on so late because it's la dolce vita British style. It's "Darling," about a beautiful girl and her destructive marriages and love affairs. Julie Christie won an Oscar for her lead role, and others in the cast include Dirk Bogarde, and Laurence Harvey.

Monday, Feb. 16
MOVIE (ABC, 8:30 p.m.). "Desire Under the Elms" stars Sophia Loren, Anthony Perkins and Burl Ives in Eugene O'Neill's brooding drama of adultery, greed and hatred on a New England farm in 1840.

BOB HOPE SPECIAL (NBC, 9 p.m.). Bob, Bing Crosby, Ray Bolger, Johnny Cash and Raquel Welch at an entertainment benefit for the Eisenhower Medical Center.

NET JOURNAL (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). "Who Invited Us?" is a critical look at U.S. military interventions from Vladivostok to Vietnam.

RETURN OF THE SMOTHERS BROTHERS (NBC, 10 p.m.).

'Bozo' Proves the Universality Of Clowns; Earns Many Millions

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Bozo" the clown is a fictitious character but he makes about $150 million a year.

There are few persons in this country who do not recognize "Bozo" and his bald head ringed with a wig, his red nose, a baggy costume with a huge collar, and gigantic shoes.

Now "Bozo" has gone international and is being seen on television screens in such places as Tokyo, Bangkok, Singapore, Costa Rica and Dublin.

Invented in '40s — "Bozo" came into being in the early '40s when Capitol Records put out a record for children featuring a squeaky-voiced clown. Nobody knows who named him "Bozo." In the next 10 years "Bozo" brought in sales of $20 million.

Then Capital decided to create a live "Bozo" for personal appearances promotions. Larry Harmon — musician and mimic actor — got the job.

Six years later Harmon bought all the "Bozo" rights from the record company and went out on his own.

A 'Bozo' School — He started a "Bozo" school in El Paso, Tex., to train actors from all parts of the world to portray the clown exactly as written and programmed.

The Japanese and Thailand actors may speak in their own language and the scripts may be altered to refer to rice instead of french fries but the clown is still "Bozo."

So far Harmon has signed nearly 50 television stations in the United States and has now started his Oriental exploitation.

A clown is universal, he says. And pantomime is universal.

ENCHANTING MARIONETTES portray the characters of Hans Christian Andersen and the Brothers Grimm in NET's Puppet Special, something extra-special for youngsters to be aired on Channel 17 Sunday, Feb. 15 at 5 p.m. This bearded fellow is "The Master Thief" who wins his freedom from a count by stealing the count's own bedsheet.

Age of Aquarius Field Trip Beckons at Mystic Seaport

"When the sun is in the lowering the development of both Seventh House, and Jupiter since Babylonian times. To further demonstrate graphically the meaning and use of astrology, several audio and visual effects will be employed. Among them are: special voice recordings, ultraviolet paintings and, a simulated evening sky.

There is a 25 cent admission charge for persons over six years of age. Group reservations such as school classes are welcomed and arrangements for special showings may be made by telephoning the planetarium office at Mystic Seaport, Mystic, Conn. (203) 536-2631, extension 281. Science and other teachers in Ulster and Dutchess Counties might well consider this for field trip purposes.

These lectures, given daily at 2 p.m. by Donald Treworgy, planetarium supervisor, and Mrs. David Howell, planetarium lecturer, will present the history of astrology and its effect on civilization today.

Back to Babylonia
In addition, it will seek to clarify the differences between astrology and astronomy, following the development of both since Babylonian times.

A New Version of 'Cinderella'

The magic of the ballet world comes alive as the National Ballet of Canada performs "Cinderella," Wednesday, Feb. 11 at 7:30 on Channel 17.

Using Prokofiev's score, the 90-minute production with ballerina Veronica Tennant in the title role retells the classic story of the wicked stepmother, her daughters and the much-abused stepchild Cinderella. Starring with Miss Tennant are Jeremy Blanton as the Prince and Lois Smith as the Fairy Godmother. "Cinderella" brings together a cast of 70, a full orchestra under the baton of George Crum, original costumes and sets especially designed for this version.

Although this new version of the Cinderella story retains the essential elements of the fairy tale, there are some changes and embellishments in detail: before flying to the ball on a huge white bird, Cinderella is transported to an enchanted garden, where the fairies of the four seasons dance for her; and as the Prince begins his search for the girl who lost her slipper, he and his aide make a whirlwind journey around the world, looking for Cinderella.

In a technique pioneered by producer-director Norman Campbell, the season fairies materialize from an opening flower or a swirl of autumn leaves with the help of the chroma-key device.

The National Ballet of Canada was founded in 1951 by London-born former dancer Delia Franca, who is still its artistic director. The group, which has achieved world-wide recognition, has a repertory including not only the classics, but also the works of outstanding contemporary choreographers.

Dick Does 'Hamlet'

From "Dr. Kildare" to "Hamlet" reads the dossier on Richard Chamberlain. The American actor, who has spent most of his time in England for two years, received high praise in the press there when he appeared as Hamlet with the Birmingham Repertory in 1969. A two-hour video version of "Hamlet," starring Chamberlain, will be presented during the 1970-71 season as a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special on the NBC network. Production will be in England.

Film for NASA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—James Franciscus, who co-starred in "Marooned," will narrate "Seeds of Discovery," a promotional film for NASA.

Telethon for Us

Ulster County, among other areas, will be in the spotlight when the annual W-TEN Cerebral Palsy Telethon is aired on Channel 10 in full color. Hosted by Jack Smith and Ilene Woods, the Telethon will be held at the Washington Avenue Armory in Albany on the weekend of Feb. 21 and 22. Show is set to begin at 11 p.m. on Saturday and will be broadcast continuously through 5 p.m. on Sunday. During last year's Telethon, more than $250,000 was raised to carry on rehabilitation programs for Ulster County, the Capital District, Berkshire County, Glens Falls, and the Central Mohawk Valley. This upcoming Telethon will be the seventh for Smith and the ninth for Miss Woods, which makes them far from strangers to area residents. In addition, there will be other guest stars along with local performers.

Barbra! Omar! Don't Miss 'Funny Girl'

MRS. BRICE (KAY MEDFORD) is the mother of singer-comedienne Fanny Brice (Barbra Streisand) in the award-winning production of "Funny Girl." And she's a stand-out in the role.

And now a word from your friendly Public Relations lady!

A word because we recognize the problems many of you have faced of late in trying to find a theater somewhere—anywhere—in the area that just might possibly be offering a film of pure entertainment. A film that did not concern itself with the freedom-loving, pot-smoking motorcyclist; the lonely search for identity by youth caught up in the 'generation gap' and the capitalistic economy; the bedroom antics of two people whose gruntings, groanings and moanings fill the sound track with a noise not unlike that made by a herd of elephants on a rampage.

Take heart if you have begun to despair over the winter that no solution was possible for your problem. Hollywood still comes up with an occasional movie aimed more toward an entertaining night out than giving you a guilt complex for your unthinking premeditated part in creating problems for hippies, blacks, criminals under sentence of death, unwed mothers, national and foreign minorities, drug addicts, Mike Wallace and Spiro Agnew.

Just for Fun

"Funny Girl" is such a movie—the most relaxing, just for fun film to come along all season. Devotees of the musical, of the super colossal production will find that they can go home again. Barbra Streisand is the star and Streisand sings as Streisand does, which is enough for any movie. And she's top comedienne, too, in scenes where she combines Fanny Brice with the best of old Mae West routines.

Omar Sharif as her gambler husband is dandy all the way, and secondary characters are inspired. The pleasant score is geared for listening, and it's all great good fun—a film that will allow you to forget global villainy for a few brief hours.

We suggest you make haste to see it at Kingston's Community Theater, where it's now in the second week of a month-long run.

As for the remainder of the movie offerings in the immediate area this week, they're all left-overs or hold-overs; have been reviewed in depth in TEMPO in previous weeks. Consult The Daily Freeman entertainment pages for times and places. We intend to spend the next few hours at "Funny Girl" as an alternative to rehashing the same plots over again yet one more time. (T.G.)

GAMBLER NICK ARNSTEIN (Omar Sharif) is married to comedienne-singer Fanny Brice (Barbra Streisand) in "Funny Girl," the lavish musical comedy now in its second week at Kingston's Community Theatre.

BARBRA STREISAND, as Fanny Brice, practices a ballet number with the assist of a male dancer for the "You Gotta Have A Swan" ballet parody in "Funny Girl."

IN THIS SCENE from "Funny Girl," Barbra Streisand as Fanny Brice wears the Baby Snooks outfit that Fanny made so famous for a costume test.

THE INIMITABLE BROCK BROKENSNAW is one of more than two dozen Woodstock artists who will be featured in an exhibit at Manhattan's new downtown gallery, the Walcott-Fields, opening late this afternoon. An all-Woodstock show, the display of art colony paintings, opens the 1970 season of the New York City gallery; will run through March 1.

Woodstock Artists in New York

Walcott-Fields Gallery in New York's Greenwich Village at 14 Fifth Avenue, opens its 1970 season today with a group show of works by Woodstock artists for the benefit of the half-century old Woodstock Artists Association. The gallery has just been taken over by Pauline Fields, a Woodstock noted in the dress designing field.

Through the gallery she intends to give exposure to work of new and serious artists and, in connection with this aim, will view work the third Thursday of each month from 7 to 10 p.m.

The Woodstock exhibit opening today will run through March 1, with no admission charge. During that time, the show will benefit the art colony association. The exhibition will continue from March 3 to 15 sans benefit. Gallery hours are 2 to 9 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday.

Record for George?

There is nothing unusual about a star being in a television series that doesn't make it and then coming back a season or so later in another series. Some have done the phoenix bit more than once. But George Hamilton must have set some sort of record. He was a co-star in ABC's "The Survivors," which faded from view on Jan. 12. On Jan. 22, he was back on the network as sole star of a new one-hour skein, "Paris 7000."

Dates & Mates: Man vs. Machine

DATES AND MATES has songs galore! DATES AND MATES is an exciting, laugh-a-minute musical comedy — another full-of-chuckles hit by Mel Weiser, Al Davis and Al Polhamus. DATES AND MATES will be staged with the aid of Hollywood Hits on March 6 and 7 at 8 p.m. by those talented performers of Red Hook High School.

DATES AND MATES introduces audiences to a strange trio, played by Martha Demson, Michael Ellis and Brenda Damon, who invade the offices of Space Age Programmers, a computerized dating and mating company. In the process, the trio romps through such tuneful musical numbers as "Think,"

"Watch Out for the Competition," and "The Brain."

Larry Krumm is cast in the role of Mr. Benson, president of the programming company. He has dating and mating ideas of his own and they involve his charming secretary, Joan Karpowich, as audiences learn during a number titled "I've Got My Eye on You!"

A Sad Surrender

Luther Sargent, playing the part of Paul Walden, has two numbers in the show; thinks at first "It's Good To Be Alive!"; later surrenders sadly to Mr. Benson's secretary with a plea of "No More."

Hilarious confusion reigns as a mammoth battle shapes up between man and machine. Eventually, however, everything is resolved happily in a rousing climax, after chorus members have had their say in such rollicking tunes as "Space Age Programming," "A Woman's Place" and "The Sappiest Business."

Directors of DATES AND MATES are Phoebe Swope and Murray Van Ness, with Van Ness also in charge of the band in the pit.

The show promises to be a thoroughly enjoyable production, and fun galore awaits those who take their date or mate to see DATES AND MATES, the musical comedy at Red Hook High School on March 6 and 7 at 8 p.m.

Combos, Singers, Jugglers Wanted

The hunt is already on for amateur entertainers — 7 to 70 years old — to appear at the 125th Dutchess County Fair, Aug. 25-30.

The fourth annual Talent Search seeks talent representing area schools, churches, 4-H clubs, Granges and service clubs as well as individual performers. Applications should be sent now to Raphael Mark in care of the Dutchess County Fair, Rhinebeck 12572.

"We are looking for combos, individual acts, singers, jugglers, instrumentalists, dancers, baton twirlers, story tellers, and others," Mark says.

Getting More Popular

The Talent Search, growing each year in popularity, is presented on the stage of the large dance tent, with continuous performances from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The acts vie for cash awards, trophies and certificates of merit with the top ones winning, in addition, an all-expense paid trip to the State Fair for statewide competition.

And 1970 will bring an innovation, Mark says. Each day, the act judged best will be presented as a prelude to the professional attractions on the grandstand stage.

The dance tent, which can accommodate 1,000 persons, offers an opportunity for fairgoers to sit down and relax amid continuous entertainment.

Last year, 60 amateur acts totaling 256 performers competed in the Talent Search program. Five of the acts later appeared at the State Fair.

Holiday Weekend Tour

Washington's Birthday, a will be guided through Brother-time we remember the Father erhood's huge underground cel- of our country and our early lars and champagne vaults, patriots, brings a holiday and past century-old white oak weekend this year. To celebrate casks where fine wines mellow and age.

Brotherhood, historic in its own right, is the oldest winery in America. Located in Wash- ingtonville, N. Y., a town of proud lineage, the winery is only an hour's drive from Kingston. Beginning today, Feb- ruary 14, Brotherhood will wel- come visitors from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday. Weekday tours resume on May 4.

During their stay, visitors

Tasting and Lecture
A free wine tasting and lec- ture on the history and use of wine are featured on each tour. To reach Brotherhood, take New York Thruway south to Exit 16 (Harriman). Follow Route 6-17 (Quickway) to Exit 130, then Route 208 to Washing- tonville.
For a free leaflet with map and year-round schedule, write to Brotherhood Wine Cellars, Washingtonville, N. Y. 10992.
The winery is always closed Sundays.

Sloop Restoration group that is bring- ing us this book gave us the CLEAR- WATER, that superlative, full-size rep- lica of a sloop that visited more than 20 Hudson River ports this past summer, including Kingston. Indeed, the CLEAR- WATER, built to sail the Hudson to con- vince us to save the river from pol- lution, is now in winter quarters at Con- nelly's Rondout Marina.

Next summer she'll be back again with her 96 foot, gaff-rigged mast and a new educational and environmental dis- play, all in the name of history and sailing.

In the meantime we can only sug- gest you put your hand to pen as old sailors once did to tiller, and order your own personal copy of "Hudson River Sloops." kill streams picking up all the driftwood he can find—some of which is probably beaverwood from old beaver dams.

Many of his lamps and birds, which bring to mind some of the masterly and treasured work of ancient Chinese sculptors, were carved from driftwood brought back from Canada, where his children go regularly on camping trips.

Are birds more difficult to carve than lamps . . . is the art of intarsia (producing decorative designs by inlaying wood in a background of wood) harder than a miniature Indian or a replica of a church? "Doesn't make too much difference," says Decker, letting the chips fall where they may.

With Care and Patience

Looking at examples of his work one is struck by their jewel- like quality. Looking closer one is impressed with the infinite care and patience that must have gone into each piece. Talking with their creator one soon realizes that his inspiration often comes from a love of the Catskills woods.

A native of New York City, Decker came to this area 40 years ago; was so smitten he stayed permanently. His career has been a varied one with emphasis on construction work. The building of the aqueduct to Gilboa was the original impetus for bringing him here.

Now retired, he has time enough and more to tend to his whittling. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

If someone had shouted, "Is there a doctor in the house?" last Saturday at Gov. Clinton Hotel, the "ayes" would've split the eardrum. 'Twas Kingston Hospital Auxiliary's traditional ball and everybody was having one including—nay, especially—the MD's.

Taking self-prescribed fun-tonics in large doses as well as a night off were (to name a few)
 Dr. Victorio DePippio, Dr.
 Henry Eichelmann, Dr. Michael
 Wang, Dr. Thomas Lee, Dr.
 Elbert Loughran. Can't figure out who was mindin' the "store," but one thing's for sure—no one at that shindig needed a practitioner, general or otherwise . . . everybody looked whoopee-well.

John Warren was there with Audria who had crocheted her own dress; it wasn't intended to be a mini but she ran out of time (good thing the ball wasn't sooner) . . . Superintendent of Schools Lou Salzmänn and missus played it safe, yielding right-of-way to some zealous dancers . . . physician of souls the Rev. Edwin Coon was his own best advertisement that good, wholesome living pays off
 . . . Clair Sheaffer and wife demonstrated several steps learned at Arthur Murray's.

Never and we mean
 N-E-V-E-R have we seen the Crystal Room quite so spectacular: foot-wide daisies, shimmering trees with myriads of tiny golden lights, fantastic birds nesting overhead, live and artificial greens with animated honey-bear directing festivities.
 Well deserved kudos go to Shirley and Fred Seeger for glittering array. Guests' first impressions of Seeger's "Encharmed Forest" was breathtaking; final reflections,
 "Wouldn't it be great if hotel could keep it like this year
 'round'."

Huddled around waterfall-centered punch table were Poughkeepsie's Leonard Zimmer of Zimmer Jewelers; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur R. Peters (he's president of hospital's Board of Trustees, she was co-chairman of ball); Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finkle. (she's president of Hospital Auxiliary); Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Trulzi—that's
 T-R-I-U-L-Z-I, and of course, you know he's administrator at Kingston Hospital; Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Winter (she was ball's co-chairman).

Mayor Frank Koenig and Marilyn were cuttin' a mean rug—with her Polish ancestry.
 Marilyn's got polkas on-the-brain
 but with the Mayor's busy schedule don't know how he'll take time out for dancing lessons . . . One of the ladies lost her wig during a more lively number but it'd be bread-
 'n-water for life if we put her name in print.

Tony and Helen Pizzarelli looked stimulated by it all and each other (and after all these years, too) . . . Julie and Frank Simpson hardly missed a dance
 — all those surgeons on tap, yet it was Frank who came to aid of female guest whose bracelet was so tight it was stopping circulation (careful Frank, you'll do yourself out-of-business) . . . Perry Bishop in ruffled shirt emulated actor
 Omar Sharif in Funny Girl . . .
 Dottie Risenbary—'tho we loved her in '69 Follies, must admit her role as hostess-with-the-mostest and a one-woman welcoming committee at '70s "Encharmed Evening" was a winner, too.

ARTHUR ALTHISER

TERRI SERRAVALLO

They're Rehearsing Their 'Girl' Leads

Two very talented Kingston natives have been cast in starring roles in the upcoming Coach House Players production of Neil Simon's uproarious comedy hit, "The Star Spangled Girl." They're Terri Serravallo, born and raised here, and Arthur Althiser, also a native of the county seat.

Terri is a secretary at IBM; sang in numerous choruses throughout her school years. A student of dance under the late Helen Cashin, she has taught modern dancing in her own right at the YWCA. A member of Coach House since 1965, Terri had roles in such previous productions as "South Pacific,"

"Guys & Dolls," "Pajama Game" and "Paint Your Wagon." Audiences will also remember her moving performance as Susan the Silent in "Finian's Rainbow" and her dual roles recently in "The King and I" as Princess Ying Yaowalak and Eliza. As Sophie in "Star Spangled Girl," she will be adding yet another character to her lengthening repertoire.

Althiser, who'll play Norman in "Girl," is making his first appearance in a Coach House production. But his previous experience with other groups includes parts in four plays, including the leading role in a drama based on the life of St. Patrick. An inveterate theatergoer, Althiser is also active in area sports circles; holds membership in State and National Historical Associations. Career-wise, he is employed by the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Comedy buffs and the entertainment-minded will want to see them in "Star Spangled Girl" when the play is presented at J. Watson Bailey School here on Feb. 26, 27 and 28 at 8:30 p.m. For tickets, contact Coach House between now and Feb. 19 or on Feb. 23 between 8 to 10 p.m. Phone number is 331-2467.

The March King And His Sound

Musicians who played under "The March King: John Philip Sousa's" baton help recreate the famed Sousa Sound, when Channel 17 presents a documentary on the life of the versatile composer-conductor, Wednesday, Feb. 18 at 8 p.m.

The National Educational Television and British Broadcasting Corporation co-production traces the life of Sousa from 1854 to 1932 and uses the specially augmented Detroit Concert Band under the direction of Dr. Leonard Smith to bring to life such favorite marches as "Stars and Stripes forever," "The Thunderer" and "El Capitan."

Playing in the reconstructed band are such notables as Bill Bell, one of the conductor-composer's most famous sousaphone players. There are also commentaries by Leopold Stokowski, who knew and frequently conducted Sousa's music.
